Mrs. Carrie Nation was several thousand miles from East Liverpool on Saturday night. Just the same there was a little smashing going on by way of a reminder that the Ceramic City is up-to-date when it comes to a fad, no matter if it consists of wearing one's coat inside out.

In the present instance the make-up of the raiders differed from the Kansas woman in that they were men. The victim was Jack Ecker, who conducts a gin mill on Lower Market street, near city hall.

It seems that J. F. Potts, who represents the Chicago Portrait company, had met with good success in this city, and Saturday evening when he decided to distribute a little of the coin he had made in this community, he had no trouble in making friends. Potts had a "roll on him," and manifested a desire to get rid of it in the shortest space of time. Besides the roll he had two sub-agents, J. R. Heath and J. C. Bronson, with him to help out when it came to a talk about his firm and their ability to furnish the best work "that ever was."

During the early part of the evening the trio visited almost every booze dispensary on the hill, and in every case Potts "put it up" to the house. This naturally won for him a great many friends among those who are looking for a mark, and the picture man had a good following when he decided to visit the tenderloin district on Second street.

The bunch went down Market street and by the time they reached Ecker's place they were dry again. This was about 10:35 and when he ordered a drink "all around" the next move made was to go up to the wine room to see the "real thing."

Here the picture man made another "bit"—principally on account of the roll—and a few more "friends" were added, but closing time came only too soon, and the proprietor requested that the bunch retire. Some objection was made to this, as the good thing had only started. So much opposition was made to going that the proprietor became angry and declared himself; whereupon they adjourned to the bar. Potts ordered a drink and had taken but one swallow when Ecker came down and ordered the entire crowd out of the house, as it was 11 o'clock.

They began slowly to take their leave, but Potts insisted upon finishing his drink, and asked time in which to carry out his intention. The proprietor was still "in the air" and in order to enforce his demand gathered up a base ball bat. Potts showed fight, and was "soaked" in the center of the forehead with the club. He hadn't had enough of that and made another dive at Ecker, who administered three more "bumps" with his persuader. This had the desired effect and Potts was "out."

The injured man made his way to the pavement and thence down the street in a dazed condition to the

Peake residence on Second street where he was taken in and cared for. Meanwhile the friends who had congregated outside the saloon began to realize what had been done to their "angel," and at once determined to have revenge. They went to the rear of the building, the saloon having been locked soon after Potts departed, and finding the back door barred, proceeded to kick it in. There were some 15 in the crowd and this was a comparatively easy matter. The door was completely demolished and the crowd entered the saloon just as Ecker drew his revolver and proceeded to prepare to exterminate the foremost of the mob. His wife perceiving his action and defining his intention, hit the gun on the top of the barrel, causing it to break and spilling the cartridges over the floor. Nothing daunted, the saloon man reversed the tool and hit several of the leaders with the butt end.

While this was going on the followers of the Sebring kiln drawer were not idle, and as a consequence the mirror was demolished and a number of other valuable articles torn to pieces. When the mob realized what they had done they retired in a confused mass, while the proprietor was hustled upstairs.

While all this was in progress Potts was being washed and cleaned up at Peake's place. About this time Officers Gill and Aufderheide happened along and escorted the disfigured individual to city hall, where they arrived in time to meet the balance of the police force, headed by Chief Thompson who had been called to the Exchange by a telephone message saying there was a riot in that vicinity.

As soon as an examination could be made it was found that the Chicago man was badly hurt, and Dr. Hamilton was summoned. The physician's investigations disclosed the presence of four wounds on the man's head, one in the center of his forehead, one above the left eye, another directly above at the edge of his hair and still another on top of the head. The two most prominent ones were sewed up and the man made as comfortable as possible, although he was unable to bear the pain toward the last and would not permit the doctor to proceed.

About this time Heath and Bronson appeared on the scene to see how their partner fared. When their identity was learned Chief Thompson placed them under arrest, and as Potts would not give security for their appearance they were locked up until Sunday morning. Potts put up $25 for his appearance and was permitted to go home.

There was a red headed man in the crowd, who it seems was sober and happened to be a spectator, but when a search was made he could not be found, and it is thought he wished to avoid being mixed up in the affair, although it was stated he knew all about the fight.

BENEFIT OF ORGANIZED LABOR

Jigermen Still Have a Separate Local and Will Oppose the Adoption

OF THE NEW UNIFORM LIST

President A. S. Hughes, of the N. B. of O. P., arrived in this city from Trenton on Saturday, and reports having accomplished some good along the line of reviving interest in the organization which he represents.

Mr. Hughes stated that he does not consider it an impossibility to accomplish the complete organization of every trade in the east. The main opposition to the Brotherhood comes from the Jigermen at Trenton, who are not nearly so strong as the stories sent out from that city would indicate.

Every other trade in Trenton is organized; possibly not as strong as the officers of the Brotherhood might wish, but still there is a foundation, and Mr. Hughes' visit to the east has gone a great way toward reviving the interest in the several local organizations. Particularly is this true of the younger tradesmen, who seem to manifest more interest in the welfare of their unions than the older men. This is taken as a very encouraging indication, and one which can not but be of incalculable benefit to the organization in the future. Taken all in all, the president is not at all discouraged at the result of his visit, having accomplished a great deal of good.

Some amusement was created among those of the operative potters who are on the inside by the unreliable statements of a Trenton correspondent on Friday. There were many funny features among the two columns of inches, but the most amusing feature about the stuff was the statement that the handful of independent Jigermen were about to compel the railroad corporations to adjust the freight rates to conform to the wishes of the eastern manufacturers. The most startling phase of the information, and the one which caused the amusement is that the majority of the potters in this city are unable to figure out how an organization composed of a corporal's guard of Jigermen can do or say anything that would cause the railroad systems of the country to alter their freight rates.

A Trenton View of It. In speaking of the mission of President Hughes the Trenton True American of Saturday says:

The mission of President Hughes who came east to reorganize the Brotherhood of Operative Potters, according to him, has been accomplished.

He left town yesterday afternoon for his home in East Liverpool. The results of Mr. Hughes' visit here can be no better explained than by the reports sent out by the officers in charge of the kilnmen's and sanitary pressers' unions.

In these branches of the trade especially Mr. Hughes has succeeded in swelling the membership and bringing back to the ranks members who had lost all interest in the meetings.

All the other unions have been more or less strengthened. The Jigermen, who have been opposing the Brotherhood ever since the agitation for the uniform price list, are still a separate and independent organization, and according to its members, are liable to remain so.

Hughes made no attempt to arbitrate the trouble, and it is evident that he has given it up as a hopeless case. The next move on the part of the executive committee will no doubt be to try and prevail upon the potters in this city to accept the uniform list.

They will be compelled to do this in order to obtain any concessions from the Manufacturers' association.

Mr. Hughes, before leaving, was unable to tell what his future plans would be, and mentioned nothing about making another trip east.

TEN KILN POTTERY

THAT WILL BE THE SIZE OF LISBON'S NEW PLANT.

Mason, Thomas & Boch Make a Move That Pleases the County Seat People.

The new pottery to be erected at Lisbon by local parties will be 10 kilns instead of seven, and the Lisbon people are consequently much elated.

In speaking of the pottery the Patriot says:

"Pottery news has been quiet for the past few weeks and many have wondered what has become of the project, but it seems that while we have been wondering the plant has grown almost one-half."

"It is now the intention of Messrs. Mason, Thomas and Boch to build a pottery here almost one-half bigger than the one they contracted for. They agreed, for the bonus raised, to put up a seven-kiln pottery, five ordinary ones and two decorating, but for the same money they will build a 10-kiln pottery and have 15,000 feet more floor space. There will be four decorating kilns instead of two and a much larger number of people will be employed."

"George B. Harvey stated to a representative of this paper this morning that the contract for the stonework would be let next week and that just as soon as the weather will permit work will begin. The contract has already been awarded to the Union Fire Clay company of Coleman, for 1,000,000 brick."

"We are all looking forward to the time when work on this plant shall begin, as that means a boom in every line for Lisbon."

His pals were brought out and after pleading guilty were assessed $9 60 each on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Some wonder was expressed by those who witnessed the scrimmage that Potts did not proceed against the saloon man, but he stated that he was getting down easy and would make no more trouble.

A large crowd saw the wind up of the affair and assert that Ecker had no occasion whatever to act as he did, and should be arrested and fined.

CHESTER MILL WILL NOT BE PUT IN OPERATION

That Is the Opinion Expressed by Millwright C. H. Davis Who Has Charge of the Removal of the Machinery.

ENGINEER STRAUSS THINKS DIFFERENT

A force of about 15 men have been engaged at the Chester sheet mill for the past two weeks removing a large quantity of machinery, which has been shipped to several other mills belonging to the trust. There it has been used to replace parts of the plant where new appliances are needed.

The work is being done under the direction of Millwright C. H. Davis, son of one of the most prominent superintendents now in the employ of the trust, and up to the present three car loads of rails and other machinery have been torn down and loaded upon cars. Two of these were sent to Wellsville, probably gave rise to the rumor that the entire equipment was to be moved there. As a matter of fact the appliances at the Wellsville plant are, and have been for a long time, in very bad shape, and it was deemed more economical, when it was considered that there was no prospect for the Chester mill being operated for the present, to take what they needed from that plant rather than have it shipped from the factory.

The third car was sent to the Canal Dover mill, where it will replace a few of the worn parts. The Dover plant is working steadily and is one of the best and most modern equipped mills owned by the combine.

Mr. Davis expresses the opinion that the Chester mill will never be operated, and backs that opinion with sound, logical argument. While he admits the advantage of the river as a means of transportation, he asserts this is of no practical value, owing to its being navigable but a few months in the year, for the shipment of finished product. The only way the Ohio could be utilized, he says, is for the shipping of raw material to the plant, which could be carried on while the river's at a navigable stage, and possibly enough material could be landed while it is in this condition to keep the plant supplied during the working season.

As a means of transporting the finished article to the ware houses in New York, the river would be a very expensive proposition, as the transfers necessary in order to get the stuff to its destination would involve more expense than the cost of shipping by rail, and more than overbalance the lower river freight rates.

The millwright told a News Review man he had no idea how long they would remain in Chester, as they might be ordered to get out more of the equipment as soon as they had completed the present orders. He stated it was not at all improbable that his force of men would be ordered to remove the whole equipment before they left the city.

This information, coming as it does from an individual who is certainly in a position to know, will not have a tendency to cheer the Chester residents, but it will have one good effect, and that is the suspense and speculation which has been going on for months will be over.

Mechanical Engineer Strauss, who had charge of the erection of the Chester mill, was in the city yesterday and he takes an entirely different view of the question. He says the mill will be started, and in speaking of the matter said:

"There is no use of the people getting excited over the mill, and the parties who have purchased lots haven't lost their money yet. The Chester mill will be started, but I don't know just how soon. The Chester mill has 12 extra rolls and because some of these are being taken to other mills owned by the trust the people should not become alarmed. If the trust did not intend to run the mill it would not have been purchased, but instead they would have paid the owners a bonus each year to have it remain idle. I am of the firm opinion that the mill will be put in operation before many months."

MAKE THEM HAPPY.

And it Can Be Done Without Costing You Very Much Money.

Two bright little girls in this city of East Liverpool have been quite sick lately. The winsome little maidens were very much loved and admired by two sedate business men, and the hearts of the latter were made tender and sad at the knowledge that their dear little friends were suffering. And so these two good Samaritans purchased some beautiful flowers and sent them to the homes of the two little maidens. The adults in the family tell of the joy those beautiful flowers brought into the lives and hearts of their little girls, who were so delighted that they could not wait until convalescent, but insisted upon sending warm thanks to the donors through the medium of a tiny little note. And it goes without saying that those merchants prize the note very highly. You can make hearts and lives happy on but a slight investment. Try it. Make some one happy.

SUNDAY SERVICES.

An Immense Audience Present at the First M. E. Church on Sunday Night.

Dr. Clark Crawford, pastor of the First M. E. church, delivered two notable sermons on Sunday, causing much favorable comment on account of the plain gospel truths contained therein, warning sinners to flee from the wrath to come, and plainly depicting the sorrow and anguish sure to follow a wicked and sinful life.

There was an immense audience present at the night service. Nine persons presented themselves at the altar at the after meeting, and the occasion was evidently one of intense spiritual earnestness and power. Several young men professed conversion. Services as usual tonight at 7:45 and until further notice. Pastor and people will accord you a warm and hearty welcome. Strangers in the city have an especial invitation to be present.

Miss Sadie Raymond, one of the actresses taking part in the rendition of "Old Arkansaw" in this city Saturday night, met with an accident in the third act of the piece which came near putting an end to the performance.

In this act she is compelled to use a dagger, and in some manner the knife became entangled in some lace on the sleeve of her dress and the dagger came in contact with her right hand penetrating to the depth of almost an inch between her thumb and first finger.

The injury was a very painful one and resulted in the loss of considerable blood. A physician was called and the wound dressed. She was able with some difficulty to resume her role.

TRICKS OF BARNSTORMERS.

How They Are Sometimes Compelled to Help One Another Out.

"One of the old slang phrases of the stage," said Muggles, who used to be a good actor, "was 'to pong.' This means, or used to mean, using your own language—that is, playing a part without cues of the proper lines, relying only upon a knowledge of the play to carry you through. Years ago on the road there used to be some highly ludicrous situations in consequence of a new play being produced in a hurry. The stage manager, however, had a wonderful genius for patching up a hitch. When circumstances were necessary, he would sometimes lower a front scene and tell 'the low comedian and chambermaid to go on and 'keep it up,' and while they did so he would arrange how the play had to be continued.

"Of course, actors are expected to help one another out of a difficulty, but at times old grudges were paid off. For instance, I remember on one occasion a letter had to be read in one scene. Unfortunately this letter could not be found, so a 'dummy'—that is, a blank sheet—was sent on the stage.

"'Say, dad,' said the actor who had to read the letter, seeing it blank, 'here's a letter for you. You had better read it yourself, as I am sure it contains good news.'

"But 'dad' tumbled to the occasion and replied: 'No Tom, you read it. I've mislaid my spectacles.'

"'Bless me,' said Tom, 'it is written so badly I can't make out a word of it. Here, Nelly, you read it.'

"The unsuspecting Nelly takes the letter, and seeing it blank says: 'No, father had better read it. He will be able to make it out better. I'll go and fetch your spectacles. I know where they are.' And off she goes.

"The old man is again equal to the occasion and calls out to her: 'Never mind bringing them, Nelly. I'll come and get them.' Then he walked off and the stage manager had to rearrange the scene.

CHESTER MILL WILL NOT BE PUT IN OPERATION

That Is the Opinion Expressed by Millwright C. H. Davis Who Has Charge of the Removal of the Machinery.

ENGINEER STRAUSS THINKS DIFFERENT

A force of about 15 men have been engaged at the Chester sheet mill for the past two weeks removing a large quantity of machinery, which has been shipped to several other mills belonging to the trust. There it has been used to replace parts of the plant where new appliances are needed.

The work is being done under the direction of Millwright C. H. Davis, son of one of the most prominent superintendents now in the employ of the trust, and up to the present three car loads of rails and other machinery have been torn down and loaded upon cars. Two of these were sent to Wellsville, probably gave rise to the rumor that the entire equipment was to be moved there. As a matter of fact the appliances at the Wellsville plant are, and have been for a long time, in very bad shape, and it was deemed more economical, when it was considered that there was no prospect for the Chester mill being operated for the present, to take what they needed from that plant rather than have it shipped from the factory.

The third car was sent to the Canal Dover mill, where it will replace a few of the worn parts. The Dover plant is working steadily and is one of the best and most modern equipped mills owned by the combine.

Mr. Davis expresses the opinion that the Chester mill will never be operated, and backs that opinion with sound, logical argument. While he admits the advantage of the river as a means of transportation, he asserts this is of no practical value, owing to its being navigable but a few months in the year, for the shipment of finished product. The only way the Ohio could be utilized, he says, is for the shipping of raw material to the plant, which could be carried on while the river is at a navigable stage, and possibly enough material could be landed while it is in this condition to keep the plant supplied during the working season.

As a means of transporting the finished article to the ware houses in New York, the river would be a very expensive proposition, as the transfers necessary in order to get the stuff to its destination would involve more expense than the cost of shipping by rail, and more than overbalance the lower river freight rates.

The millwright told a News Review man he had no idea how long they would remain in Chester, as they might be ordered to get out more of the equipment as soon as they had completed the present orders. He stated it was not at all improbable that his force of men would be ordered to remove the whole equipment before they left the city.

This information, coming as it does from an individual who is certainly in a position to know, will not have a tendency to cheer the Chester residents, but it will have one good effect, and that is the suspense and speculation which has been going on for months will be over.

Mechanical Engineer Strauss, who had charge of the erection of the Chester mill, was in the city yesterday and he takes an entirely different view of the question. He says the mill will be started, and in speaking of the matter said:

"There is no use of the people getting excited over the mill, and the parties who have purchased lots haven't lost their money yet. The Chester mill will be started, but I don't know just how soon. The Chester mill has 12 extra rolls and because some of these are being taken to other mills owned by the trust the people should not become alarmed. If the trust did not intend to run the mill it would not have been purchased, but instead they would have paid the owners a bonus each year to have it remain idle. I am of the firm opinion that the mill will be put in operation before many months."

And it Can Be Done Without Costing You Very Much Money.

Two bright little girls in this city of East Liverpool have been quite sick lately. The winsome little maidens were very much loved and admired by two sedate business men, and the hearts of the latter were made tender and sad at the knowledge that their dear little friends were suffering. And so these two good Samaritans purchased some beautiful flowers and sent them to the homes of the two little maidens. The adults in the family tell of the joy those beautiful flowers brought into the lives and hearts of their little girls, who were so delighted that they could not wait until convalescent, but insisted upon sending warm thanks to the donors through the medium of a tiny little note. And it goes without saying that those merchants prize the note very highly. You can make hearts and lives happy on but a slight investment. Try it. Make some one happy.

SUNDAY SERVICES.

An Immense Audience Present at the First M. E. Church on Sunday Night.

Dr. Clark Crawford, pastor of the First M. E. church, delivered two notable sermons on Sunday, causing much favorable comment on account of the plain gospel truths contained therein, warning sinners to flee from the wrath to come, and plainly depicting the sorrow and anguish sure to follow a wicked and sinful life.

There was an immense audience present at the night service. Nine persons presented themselves at the altar at the alter meeting, and the occasion was evidently one of intense spiritual earnestness and power. Several young men professed conversion.

Services as usual tonight at 7:45 and until further notice. Pastor and people will accord you a warm and hearty welcome. Strangers in the city have an especial invitation to be present.

She Intended to Annihilate the Villain, But Had Too Much Lace on Her Dress.

Miss Sadie Raymond, one of the actresses taking part in the rendition of "Old Arkansaw" in this city Saturday night, met with an accident in the third act of the piece which came near putting an end to the performance.

In this act she is compelled to use a dagger, and in some manner the knife became entangled in some lace on the sleeve of her dress and the dagger came in contact with her right hand penetrating to the depth of almost an inch between her thumb and first finger.

The injury was a very painful one and resulted in the loss of considerable blood. A physician was called and the wound dressed. She was able with some difficulty to resume her role.

AN IRON WORKER IN TROUBLE

Police business picked up a little on Saturday night, and in addition to the haul at the Ecker saloon several other indiscreet persons who indulged too freely were run in.

Officers Gill and Aufderheide were called into the National House Saturday night by the proprietor, William G. Walther, and "Zip" Farmer was turned over to them on a charge of attempting to purchase a drink of intoxicants. "Zip" is a minor and the offense comes under the state law.

Sunday morning when arraigned Farmer was fined $6 60 by the mayor and he is still in jail.

Andrew Call was arrested by Officer Davidson Saturday night on a charge of intoxication. The mayor assessed him $5 60, and he is still in the coop.

Young Sam Dawson got a jag from the same booze that got Call into trouble, and was arrested by Officer Morris. He was given the same dose, and will keep Andrew company for some time to come.

William Martin is an iron worker and had been employed at the Mingo mill. He arrived in this city Saturday morning and had seven or eight whiskies and seven or eight beers. This was a little too much and when arrested he was clear out.

Mayor Davidson had him up Sunday morning and when his honor said $5 60 Martin wept as though his heart would break. He told a hard luck story about being broke, and continued to weep. The mayor told him if assured that he would be out of town within a few minutes he would let him go. Martin said he would require but 10 minutes, and his tears turned to joy when he made his way from the office.

John Duck, a resident of Huston addition, was at the mayor's office this morning, where he notified the authorities that his wife, Jennie Duck, had disappeared last Thursday and no trace of her could be found. Mr. Duck was very much concerned, and requested that the authorities lend what aid they could toward locating the missing woman.

It seems that when the couple were married some years ago Mrs. Duck had two children to a former husband. It is said that she placed them in an orphan asylum, being advised by her parents to do so, and that she has worried constantly on account of giving her consent to this move, and that at various times during the months that passed had threatened to make way with herself. In view of these facts it is thought by some that she may have carried out the threat.

COME DRY IN THE AMBULANCE

A Doctor's Story of a Man and a Woman, Each With a Broken Leg. "When I was an ambulance surgeon," said the young family physician, "I used to start like a fire horse at the sound of the call. I was just as much interested in the work at the end of two years as I was the day I began. It was the excitement of the life that made me so fond of it. I had all sorts of experiences at all sorts of hours. There was an element of danger in it, too, but that only added to the charm.

"One night I had a call from the west side in the neighborhood of Chelsea square. It was for a drunken man who fell down and broke his leg. On the way back to the hospital with him I picked up a drunken woman to whom a similar accident had happened. There was nothing to do but put her in the ambulance along with the man.

"After that the ride across town was exciting enough for a cowboy. At first the patients sympathized with each other. Then they began to cry in chorus. At Broadway they fell to kissing each other. At Third avenue they were fighting like a pair of Kilkenny cats, and I had my hands full in keeping them apart. The woman had scratched the man's face dreadfully, and he had nearly closed her eye with a punch. When we struck the asphalt in Twenty-sixth street, they were singing 'We Have All Been There Before Many a Time,' and such singing! The uproar attracted a crowd who evidently thought I had an ambulance full of lunatics. When we reached the gate, they swore eternal friendship, and at the office they parted in tears."—New York Sun.

The Way to Win Strength.

The Romans won their empire by attacking their enemies one by one. Besides this, they did not attack a new enemy until they had conquered the old enemy. They went farther still and like the English in conquering India used their late enemies, and this is what we should do in learning and practicing games and athletics. It is of little use to try to conquer the whole empire at once. First conquer a part and make it your own. Then proceed to a second part and conquer that; and, if you can, let the parts which you have already conquered help you to conquer fresh parts.—Eustace H. Mills in Saturday Evening Post.

The Counterfeit Bill.

The average counterfeit bill shows better work on the right hand side than on the left. More care is taken to make the work accurate, because unless a man is left handed it is customary in counting a pile of bills to hold the left ends down and turn up only the right ends. The assistant in the city banks now reverses the process and turns the bills with his left hand.

"What's dem spots on you all's fore-head?" asked Mr. Erastus Pinkley.

"My wife done gimme dem," answered Mr. Simpkins Colliflower. "Dat's de stylishe kin' o' decorations. Dem's poker dots."—Washington Star.

Obeyed Orders.

One of the officials of the road had invited a party of gentlemen to take a little pleasure excursion over a part of the line on his private car. Before the appointed day he was taken sick and called in his chef and commissary.

"Eph," he said, "I have asked these friends and can neither go with them nor disappoint them. I want you to give them the best there is in the larder and see that it is served as well as it would be at the best hotel in the world."

Eph scratched his head and looked troubled, but simply said, "Yes, sah."

On the return several of the gentlemen congratulated the official upon having such a "man," and one or two intimated that if Eph ever wanted another position he would have no trouble in securing it.

Finally Eph reported, "It wa' a great outin, sah," he assured his employer. "Yas, sah; dat's right, sah; a stupendous outin, sah. De gem-men all done me proud, and I tells 'em it wa' you, sah."

Then Eph showed the bill, and it was a stunner for length and amount. He stood hat in hand until the official said: "Pretty steep, Eph; pretty steep. Nothing left out and nothing but the best."

"Dat's right, sah. I was fusticated mos' to deaf, sah, but I jes' says to myself, sah, dat dey was no greater epicac in de lan dan you is, and I bought and cooked and served, sah, jes' like it wa' you."—Detroit Free Press.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 18, 1901.

JUDGE HOLLISTER.

Judge Hollister, of Cincinnati, asserts that "a prize fight is the worst sort of a public nuisance that can be named." The judge forgot the un-American saloon in this decision; but possibly his honor places them on the same level, as saloons, prize fighting, gambling and houses of ill-fame go hand in hand, fit agents in the service of the devil.

HOW HE LOVES HIM.

Potts, of the Lisbon Patriot, loves the present owner of the Canton News Democrat with a peculiar love; with what might be termed a left handed affection; and the pet names and titles he applies to the aforesaid Canton sheet would cause the risibles to rise on the tip of the beak of the pet parrot of the Criterion restaurant, and make Lyman Rinehart's South African monkey howl with unadulterated delight. Strangely intense is the affection existing between these two would-be leaders of Democracy in Columbian county.

A COWARDLY ACT.

A well known gentleman of this city is the recipient of a nasty valentine, sent by some coward of East Liverpool, but mailed at Allegheny City in order that the sender may escape detection and punishment. On the margin of the said valentine words are written reflecting upon the good name and character of the lady whom the recipient is paying attention to. The creatures who resort to such dirty work are unfit to be classed with humanity. They belong to the class known as graveyard ghouls. If detected, hot punishment will be dealt out in this case.

dured in East Liverpool, and the candidate making use of them must have been raised in the backwoods and have never yet interviewed a locomotive, bicycle or street car motor. The day of this miserable class of contemptible rascals and confidence scoundrels has gone by in Columbian county, never again to return. As a rule they represented the brothel, the gambling hell and the infamous saloon, and their departure from the arena of local politics will be hailed with delight by every decent candidate and voter in the county. Selah.

NIPPED THE MAYOR.

Judge Hollister taught Mayor Fleischmann, of Cincinnati, a lasting and much needed lesson when he turned down that official, good and cold, respecting the permit of the mayor for a prize fight between two big bruisers. The Saengerfest Athlet-ic club is also enjoined from accepting hereafter from the said mayor a permit for a sparring match, a glove contest or a prize fight. Some men need to be taught that they are very small when they come in conflict with the law which creates them. Again the News Review thanks Governor George Kilbom Nash for the course he has pursued in the enforcement of common law and clean government. We note the dawn of a better day in the political horizon. The entire Republican party of the state of Ohio has cause for rejoicing in the action of Governor Nash against prize fighting in this grand old Buckeye com-monwealth.

SUNDAY DESECRATION.

It ought not to exist in East Liverpool. God has forbidden Sunday desecration, and the guilty man or woman shall not escape the penalty of an outraged divine law. You may seemingly escape punishment; but such is not the reality. Sooner or later you will be called to account, even on this earth, while your reckoning in eter-nity will be a fearful one. There be men in this city who profess to know and to love God, and yet engage in business pursuits all the Sabbath day, pleading that business rivals do the same; that they cannot afford to lose the Sunday trade; that Sunday is their very best day. Oh, ye blind and foolish ones, will ye dare offer such weak and miserable and paltry excuses in the day of final judgment, in the presence of the Master? And where is the law of the land? What are our city officials doing? Where are the consciences of mayor, mar-shal and roundsmen? Are these men not just as guilty as are the law-breakers whom they have solemnly sworn to detect, arrest and bring to punishment? Plainly and truly they are, and the record shall be that they have been "weighed in the balance and found wanting." Sunday desecration shall cease. The flat has gone forth. The day of wrath is not far distant. Moral suasion has failed. More drastic measures will be called into requisition. Smile at this; but remember that you have had fair warning. Our skirts are clear.

PAY YOUR DEBTS.

When you deliberately defraud and cheat a man or a woman, you are unworthy of the respect and esteem of the community in which you reside, and you cannot have your own self-respect. You are simply a dead beat; nothing more or less. You may attend church, prayer and class meeting, and outwardly enact the part of a saint, but you are merely a whitened sepulcher, and your prayers and petitions drop upon the floor as flat as an old fashioned pancake. Pay your honest debts, man, and walk uprightly, and be able to look your neighbor in the face and say that you owe no man anything save good will. There be men in this city of East Liverpool who have, on more than one occasion, been guilty of the crime of embezzlement; they have been detected and had the strong arm of the law reaching after them, when merciful and kindhearted men, responding to their cries and tears, came to their rescue and aided them financially; and now these same miserable creatures, placed in a position where they can easily repay the loan, absolutely refuse to do so, simply because the law can no longer reach them. We long to name them in these columns, so that business men and merchants, and the public at large may know them, and mete out to them the punishment the dead beats so richly merit. Pay your debts you miserable creatures; or at least make the attempt. Any fair man will meet you more than half way and aid you to get on your financial feet and win back your self-respect and the respect of the community. If you cannot pay in full on date, pay in part, and keep making small payments, and the mountain will yet become a mole hill. Show your desire to be a man and not a mouse. Pay your debts.

THE SALOONISTS.

The infamous keepers of joints and dens of vice in Kansas are now talking of organized resistance to the efforts made to enforce the law and drive them out of existence. At one place the keepers of these rum holes are attempting to compromise the trouble by saying that they will agree to close their illegal dives at midnight, and not keep open night and day, as they have dared to do in the past. Saloons are illegal in the state of Kansas. Where be the officers of the law? What is the matter with the governor of the state? If the civil officials are so iniquitous and vile as to wink at lawlessness and lawbreaking, why not make use of the military arm of the law, as did our own Governor Nash in the case of the bruisers, Jeffries and Ruhlin? The day of reckoning is surely coming. The handwriting is on the wall. Judgment is merely suspended. Punishment is merely delayed. The arm of justice will yet smite heavily, and that right early. The masses all over the nation are awakening to the enormity of the crime which the infamous liquor league has fastened upon our land. Kansas is merely an outpost or cossack post. The skirmish line of the enemy will be driven in ere long. Their main force may check the armies of reformation and clean government temporarily; but the great reserves of the entire nation will yet be brought to the front and the Rum Devil be eventually overthrown. HOSPITAL PUZZLE SOLVED.

A workman in Knowles, Taylor & Knowles pottery believes that he has solved the financial end of the hospital puzzle. He states that he was called upon in a similar case a few years ago, when he was making but $1.50 per day, and he gave $1.50, or a day's work. He now believes that every workman in East Liverpool, making high or low wages, will be willing to contribute one day's work to this noble project, and he believes that such a method of procedure, in company with the fund contributed by merchants, manufacturers, business and professional men, will easily raise the required sum. 10 GALLON KEG OF SHERRY WINE

Was Stolen From the Outbound Platform at Freight Station Friday Night.

THIEVES HAVE BEEN ARRESTED

Two Call Boys and Sam Dawson Were the Parties Who Took the Wine.

C. & P. DETECTIVES WERE HERE

Last Thursday night a 10-gallon keg of sherry wine was stolen from the outbound platform of the freight station. The crew at the station had overlooked the package and it was left outside when the place was locked up.

When the theft was discovered on Friday morning, Captain Baker, of the detective force, was notified, and with Detectives Schilling and Joseph Moore, have been working on the case until this morning.

Suspicion was directed toward Sam Dawson and two of the Call boys, and the local police force, who had been asked to assist in the case, at once began an investigation, with the result that Sam and Andrew Call were caught on Saturday night very drunk. Dawson had in his possession a pint beer bottle containing a quantity of the sherry. As soon as Call found himself under arrest he made a clean breast of the whole affair, implicating his brothers, Moses and William, at the same time asserting that he had nothing to do with the robbery. He was held as a witness and the authorities made an attempt to locate the others yesterday.

This they failed to do, but Chief Thompson and Officer Aufderheide started out this morning, and succeeded in running their men in. They were found on the river bank not far from the Kiser shanty boat.

A well known gentleman of this city is the recipient of a nasty valentine, sent by some coward of East Liverpool, but mailed at Allegheny City in order that the sender may escape detection and punishment. On the margin of the said valentine words are written reflecting upon the good name and character of the lady whom the recipient is paying attention to. The creatures who resort to such dirty work are unfit to be classed with humanity. They belong to the class known as graveyard ghouls. If detected, hot punishment will be dealt out in this case.

HOSPITAL PUZZLE SOLVED.

A workman in Knowles, Taylor & Knowles pottery believes that he has solved the financial end of the hospital puzzle. He states, that he was called upon in a similar case a few years ago, when he was making but $1.50 per day, and he gave $1.50, or a day's work. He now believes that every workman in East Liverpool, making high or low wages, will be willing to contribute one day's work to this noble project, and he believes that such a method of procedure, in company with the fund contributed by merchants, manufacturers, business and professional men, will easily raise the required sum. What think you of this workman's idea?

DON'T USE THEM.

Rounders and ward heelers and candidate bleeders are no longer endured in East Liverpool, and the candidate making use of them must have been raised in the backwoods and have never yet interviewed a locomotive, bicycle or street car motor. The day of this miserable class of contemptible rascals and confidence scoundrels has gone by in Columbian county, never again to return. As a rule they represented the brothel, the gambling hell and the infamous saloon, and their departure from the arena of local politics will be hailed with delight by every decent candidate and voter in the county. Selah.

NIPPED THE MAYOR.

Judge Hollister taught Mayor Fleischmann, of Cincinnati, a lasting and much needed lesson when he turned down that official, good and cold, respecting the permit of the mayor for a prize fight between two big bruisers. The Saengerfest Athletic club is also enjoined from accepting hereafter from the said mayor a permit for a sparring match, a glove contest or a prize fight. Some men need to be taught that they are very small when they come in conflict with the law which creates them. Again the News Review thanks Governor George Kilbom Nash for the course he has pursued in the enforcement of common law and clean government. We note the dawn of a better day in the political horizon. The entire Republican party of the state of Ohio has cause for rejoicing in the action of Governor Nash against prize fighting in this grand old Buckeye commonwealth.

SUNDAY DESECRATION.

It ought not to exist in East Liverpool. God has forbidden Sunday desecration, and the guilty man or woman shall not escape the penalty of an outraged divine law. You may seemingly escape punishment; but such is not the reality. Sooner or later you will be called to account, even on this earth, while your reckoning in eternity will be a fearful one. There be men in this city who profess to know and to love God, and yet engage in business pursuits all the Sabbath day, pleading that business rivals do the same; that they cannot afford to lose the Sunday trade; that Sunday is their very best day. Oh, ye blind and foolish ones, will ye dare offer such weak and miserable and paltry excuses in the day of final judgment, in the presence of the Master? And where is the law of the land? What are our city officials doing? Where are the consciences of mayor, marshal and roundsmen? Are these men not just as guilty as are the law-breakers whom they have solemnly sworn to detect, arrest and bring to punishment? Plainly and truly they are, and the record shall be that they have been "weighed in the balance and found wanting." Sunday desecration shall cease. The flat has gone forth. The day of wrath is not far distant. Moral suasion has failed. More drastic measures will be called into requisition. Smile at this; but remember that you have had fair warning. Our skirts are clear.

cheat a man or a woman, you are unworthy of the respect and esteem of the community in which you reside, and you cannot have your own self-respect. You are simply a dead beat; nothing more or less. You may attend church, prayer and class meeting, and outwardly enact the part of a saint, but you are merely a whitened sepulcher, and your prayers and petitions drop upon the floor as flat as an old fashioned pancake. Pay your honest debts, man, and walk uprightly, and be able to look your neighbor in the face and say that you owe no man anything save good will. There be men in this city of East Liverpool who have, on more than one occasion, been guilty of the crime of embezzlement; they have been detected and had the strong arm of the law reaching after them, when merciful and kindhearted men, responding to their cries and tears, came to their rescue and aided them financially; and now these same miserable creatures, placed in a position where they can easily repay the loan, absolutely refuse to do so, simply because the law can no longer reach them. We long to name them in these columns, so that business men and merchants, and the public at large may know them, and mete out to them the punishment the dead beats so richly merit. Pay your debts you miserable creatures; or at least make the attempt. Any fair man will meet you more than half way and aid you to get on your financial feet and win back your self-respect and the respect of the community. If you cannot pay in full on date, pay in part, and keep making small payments, and the mountain will yet become a mole hill. Show your desire to be a man and not a mouse. Pay your debts.

THE SALOONISTS.

The infamous keepers of joints and dens of vice in Kansas are now talking of organized resistance to the efforts made to enforce the law and drive them out of existence. At one place the keepers of these rum holes are attempting to compromise the trouble by saying that they will agree to close their illegal dives at midnight, and not keep open night and day, as they have dared to do in the past. Saloons are illegal in the state of Kansas. Where be the officers of the law? What is the matter with the governor of the state? If the civil officials are so iniquitous and vile as to wink at lawlessness and lawbreaking, why not make use of the military arm of the law, as did our own Governor Nash in the case of the bruisers, Jeffries and Ruhlin? The day of reckoning is surely coming. The handwriting is on the wall. Judgment is merely suspended. Punishment is merely delayed. The arm of justice will yet smite heavily, and that right early. The masses all over the nation are awakening to the enormity of the crime which the infamous liquor league has fastened upon our land. Kansas is merely an outpost or cossack post. The skirmish line of the enemy will be driven in ere long. Their main force may check the armies of reformation and clean government temporarily; but the great reserves of the entire nation will yet be brought to the front and the Rum Devil be eventually overthrown. We believe that the Christian and conservative element of the United States are ready for the battle. We believe that the great masses of our country are sick and weary of the actually hellish domination of the liquor league, and that they are demanding that this great and grand and glorious republic shall sever, once and forever, its damnable contract and partnership with the liquor traffic. May our God speed the day. Are you ready for the fray, Christian men and women, ye who call yourselves children of God? The writer is fully ready, and has dedicated his life to the Master along this line of conflict, ready and eager to do battle to the limit against the Rum Devil and his forces, the arch enemy of our God and our common humanity.

When the theft was discovered on Friday morning, Captain Baker, of the detective force, was notified, and with Detectives Schilling and Joseph Moore, have been working on the case until this morning. Suspicion was directed toward Sam Dawson and two of the Call boys, and the local police force, who had been asked to assist in the case, at once began an investigation, with the result that Sam and Andrew Call were caught on Saturday night very drunk. Dawson had in his possession a pint beer bottle containing a quantity of the sherry. As soon as Call found himself under arrest he made a clean breast of the whole affair, implicating his brothers, Moses and William, at the same time asserting that he had nothing to do with the robbery. EAST END. PUTNAM THINKS HE SAW A GHOST

Nightwatchman at the Artificial Gas Plant Was Very Badly Frightened

ON LAST FRIDAY NIGHT

The Ghost Closely Resembled a Former Nightwatchman Who Died Recently.

PUTNAM MAY RESIGN POSITION

On duty at midnight in a weird and lonely hollow, with the ghost of a former night watchman as a companion, is rather a unique and unpleasant experience, but such were the conditions under which Jack Putnam, the night watchman at the artificial gas plant, claims to have labored under last Friday night.

Mr. Putnam says just before midnight his attention was attracted by the sound of muffled footsteps falling in slow and measured tread at the south end of the building. When he proceeded to investigate he was met by what appeared to be a man of medium build, whose face wore a strikingly peculiar and ghostly expression. The apparition would make no reply to several inquiries addressed to it, but its expression changed so as to closely resemble that of a former night watchman who died recently. After making further tests which fully convinced Putnam that his companion was not human he decided to seek more congenial company and departed in haste leaving the apparition in full possession.

Whether Mr. Putnam will continue in his present position is not known, but the affair has aroused no little interest among Putnam's friends and acquaintances here, as his veracity is unquestioned.

RALSTON WAS ROBBED

WHILE HE WAS ATTENDING A FUNERAL YESTERDAY.

Thieves Succeeded in Securing $17 in Cash And a Suit of Clothes.

Thieves broke into the house of David Ralston, at Smith's Ferry, yesterday morning and robbed him of $17 in money, a fine suit of clothes and many other valuables which could be easily carried.

Mr. Ralston was attending a funeral at the time. This is the second time Mr. Ralston has been robbed during the past year, the previous robbery having occurred last August, but at that time little of value was stolen.

The thieves left no clue, and although several persons are suspected, nothing definite is known as to their identity, but Mr. Ralston will make a strong effort to bring the parties to justice.

DICK HOWARD

Fell in a Swoon While Attending Sunday School Yesterday Morning.

Excitement was caused at the Second Presbyterian church in Sunday school yesterday morning, when Dick Howard, aged 12 years, fell in a swoon. A little water applied to his face revived him, however, and further than badly frightening a few of the ladies nothing serious resulted.

Death of Homer Wilson. Officer John Spence received a dis-

TWO CASES

WERE FILED IN THE COURT OF SQUIRE McLANE.

Alex Chaffin Has Commenced a Forceable Detention Action Against Some of His Tenants.

Alex Chaffin has begun an action in the court of Justice McLane against Mr. and Mrs. George Gail for forcible detention. The case is being heard this afternoon. The suit involves property situated in East End.

Henry Schenkel has been rooming with Mrs. T. L. Rice on Broadway for several months. Recently he concluded to go to housekeeping with his mother, but when he went for his belongings found them locked up. The landlady claimed Henry owed her some room rent, and he was equally positive that he did not.

He thought his way so hard that he went to Justice McLane with his troubles. Constable Miller accompanied him to the Rice home, but that proved disastrous, as the constable's presence had a bad effect and did no good.

They returned to the squire's office where replevin proceedings were instituted. This had the desired effect and the barber's possessions were brought to McLane's court and turned over to their owner.

It developed that Schenkel had agreed to pay $8 per month for the room, and had paid $2 each week, making a gain of that amount in every case where five Saturdays occurred in a month, so that he was considerably ahead when he quit.

The case is set for Tuesday morning, at which time it will be tried upon its merits.

Justice McLane at 2 o'clock this afternoon united in marriage John Dimmerling and Miss Ada Hamilton, both of East Liverpool.

PUTNAM THINKS HE SAW A GHOST

Nightwatchman at the Artificial Gas Plant Was Very Badly Frightened

ON LAST NIGHT

The Ghost Closely Resembled a Former Nightwatchman Who Died Recently.

PUTNAM MAY RESIGN POSITION

On duty at midnight in a weird and lonely hollow, with the ghost of a former night watchman as a companion, is rather a unique and unpleasant experience, but such were the conditions under which Jack Putnam, the night watchman at the artificial gas plant, claims to have labored under last Friday night.

Mr. Putnam says just before midnight his attention was attracted by the sound of muffled footsteps falling in slow and measured tread at the south end of the building. When he proceeded to investigate he was met by what appeared to be a man of medium build, whose face wore a strikingly peculiar and ghostly expression. The apparition would make no reply to several inquiries addressed to it, but its expression changed so as to closely resemble that of a former night watchman who died recently. After making further tests which fully convinced Putnam that his companion was not human he decided to seek more congenial company and departed in haste leaving the apparition in full possession.

Whether Mr. Putnam will continue in his present position is not known, but the affair has aroused no little interest among Putnam's friends and acquaintances here, as his veracity is unquestioned.

RALSTON WAS ROBBED

WHILE HE WAS ATTENDING A FUNERAL YESTERDAY.

Thieves Succeeded in Securing $17 in Cash And a Suit of Clothes.

Thieves broke into the house of David Ralston, at Smith's Ferry, yesterday morning and robbed him of $17 in money, a fine suit of clothes and many other valuables which could be easily carried.

Mr. Ralston was attending a funeral at the time. This is the second time Mr. Ralston has been robbed during the past year, the previous robbery having occurred last August, but at that time little of value was stolen.

The thieves left no clue, and although several persons are suspected, nothing definite is known as to their identity, but Mr. Ralston will make a strong effort to bring the parties to justice.

DICK HOWARD

Fell in a Swoon While Attending Sunday School Yesterday Morning.

Excitement was caused at the Second Presbyterian church in Sunday school yesterday morning, when Dick Howard, aged 12 years, fell in a swoon. A little water applied to his face revived him, however, and further than badly frightening a few of the ladies nothing serious resulted.

TWO CASES

WERE FILED IN THE COURT OF SQUIRE McLANE.

Alex Chaffin Has Commenced a Forceable Detention Action Against Some of His Tenants.

Alex Chaffin has begun an action in the court of Justice McLane against Mr. and Mrs. George Gail for forcible detention. The case is being heard this afternoon. The suit involves property situated in East End.

Henry Schenkel has been rooming with Mrs. T. L. Rice on Broadway for several months. Recently he concluded to go to housekeeping with his mother, but when he went for his belongings found them locked up. The landlady claimed Henry owed her some room rent, and he was equally positive that he did not.

He thought his way so hard that he went to Justice McLane with his troubles. Constable Miller accompanied him to the Rice home, but that proved disastrous, as the constable's presence had a bad effect and did no good.

They returned to the squire's office where replevin proceedings were instituted. This had the desired effect and the barber's possessions were brought to McLane's court and turned over to their owner.

It developed that Schenkel had agreed to pay $8 per month for the room, and had paid $2 each week, making a gain of that amount in every case where five Saturdays occurred in a month, so that he was considerably ahead when he quit.

The case is set for Tuesday morning, at which time it will be tried upon its merits.

Justice McLane at 2 o'clock this afternoon united in marriage John Dimmerling and Miss Ada Hamilton, both of East Liverpool.

SOUTH SIDE.

PLENTY OF ATTORNEYS.

The Legal Lights Were Very Numerous at the Fulton-Allison Trial.

The much-talked-of case of Fulton versus Allison was held Saturday at New Cumberland before Justice Ward, who withheld his decision until today.

A number of witnesses were present, but only two of them were examined by the defense, who claim they considered it unnecessary to proceed further.

The prosecution was conducted by Attorneys Oliver Marshall, of New Cumberland, and Erastus Marshall, of East Liverpool, and the defense was handled by Attorneys Hart & McKenzie, of New Cumberland; Ingram, of Chester, and Davidson, of East Liverpool.

Meetings Closed.

The meetings at the M. E. church closed last night. There had been several conversions since the meetings began, but the attendance had become so small that it was thought unnecessary to continue the services longer.

Meetings Will Continue.

The Free Methodists of the Southside will continue their protracted meetings at Hookstown another week. They report an unusually large number of conversions.

Resigned His Position.

F. M. Dudley has resigned his position as boss decorator at the Taylor Lee & Smith pottery, and will be succeeded by George Buxton, of East Liverpool.

Rev. J. B. Pierce will preach in the Chester school house tomorrow evening, the services to begin at 7:30. All are invited to be present.

Bambrick is Ill.

Thomas Bambrick is ill at his home in Fairview, suffering from a severe attack of measles.

Southside Notes.

Mrs. Ada Marshall and her father, David Yant, of Fairview, were visiting relatives in Chester Saturday.

Miss Minnie Neal has partly recovered from the dangerous injury received at the base of the brain as the result of a fall on the ice, but she is now suffering from a complication of diseases, resulting from internal injuries received at that time, which are likely to prove fatal.

Charles Boles, who came home from Connellsville Saturday, returned to that place this morning.

VICTIMS PERISHED.

Hope Gone and Water Turned
Into Burning Mine

THE ENTOMBED NUMBERED 61.

Dunsmuir, One of the Owners, Ordered
the Company Storekeepers to Give the Afflicted Families Whatever They Needed—steps at Vancouver to Secure Aid.

Vancouver, B. C., Feb. 18.—Additional details from the Union mines on Vancouver island, where the terrible fatality occurred Friday afternoon, showed that the accident had thrown the towns of Cumberland and Nanaimo into a state of gloom. The Canadian Pacific Railway company's steamer Tartar arrived at Vancouver, from the coaling station at Union, about 12 miles from Cumberland. She brought two passengers, H. B. Raymond and George Bennett, both coal miners. Neither had any theory as to the cause of the explosion in No. 6 shaft, in which the accident occurred. They said the cause was not known and that it will never be known. When the Tartar left Union the late news from No. 6 shaft was that the flooding process was still being continued. The fire was still burning, although not so fiercely as during about the 36 hours preceding. The tremendous volume of water pouring into the mines from the continuous supply furnished by an eight-inch main was gradually performing the desired service, and by today it is confidently expected the fire will be extinguished. It will be several days, Raymond says, before the bodies of the 61 entombed miners can be recovered, because after the fire has been put out it will be necessary to pump the water out of the mine before a rescuing party can hope to get at the corpses now lying at the bottom of the shaft.

Shortly before the Tartar sailed from Union the steamer Joan arrived, having on board Premier James Dunsmuir, of the British Columbia government, who is one of the owners of the Cumberland mines. The families of the dead miners require financial assistance, which will be forthcoming from more than one source. The mayor of Vancouver has already taken steps to aid the bereaved families and other cities are taking similar action. In the meantime Premier Dunsmuir has ordered the storekeepers at Cumberland to give the distressed families what supplies they may need.

After the arrival of Premier Dunsmuir and his party at mine shaft No. 5, which connects with No. 6, it was opened and the big fan started to drive a volume of air down and to force back the gases and afterdamp from No. 6.

Later Manager Little, Inspector of Mines McGregor, Thomas Russell and a number of other mining engineers went down and were below about two hours. They reported on coming up that they had proceeded in some 800 or 900 feet, when they met body gas. Shaft No. 6 is flooded to a depth of 42 feet, and it is believed the fire has been extinguished.

The members of the party who went down No. 5 found no smoke or sign of fire. Some believe that they will be able to get through to No. 6 and endeavor to get out some of the bodies today or tomorrow.

ETHELBERT NEVIN DEAD.

The Famous Musical Composer Died at New Haven, Conn.

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 18.—Ethelbert Nevin, musician and composer died suddenly here of heart disease. He was 38 years old. Mr. Nevin came to New Haven about five weeks ago to be associated with Prof. Parker, of Yale University, in his musical work. He was in perfect health until last Friday. He leaves a widow and two children.

Mr. Nevin until a few years ago made his residence in Edgeworth, near Pittsburgh, and then removed to New York, but a short time ago going to New Haven.

His wife was Miss Annie Paul, of Pittsburgh, Pa. As a composer Nevin attained a name hardly second to any American musician, and his songs are known throughout two continents. Among these are the "Rosary," "Narcissus," "Good Night," "Good Night,

"Beloved," and an arrangement of Heine's "Habbin Rielein."

ILLNESS OF DOWAGER EMPRESS.

Conflicting Reports as to Condition of Kaiser's Mother.

Berlin, Feb. 18.—The reports as to the condition of Dowager Empress Frederick, who is ill at Cronberg, are quite contradictory. The Local Anzeiger prints a dispatch from Homburg asserting that her condition is satisfactory; that Dr. Renvers, a Berlin specialist, who was called to attend her some time ago, has not been to Homburg for about three weeks, and that her private physician attended a ball Saturday evening. A Berlin news agency corroborates the statements that her condition is quite satisfactory.

On the other hand, the British embassy takes a very serious view of the situation, believing that Emperor William is remaining at Cronberg in anticipation of a fatal issue, and refusing to believe the reports that the dowager empress goes out driving daily.

From private sources it is ascertained that the end is expected in a few weeks at the latest.

WORK OF MUNCHAUSENS.

Roosevelt Denies Bear and Wolf Stories, but Asserts His Prowess When Comes to Lions.

Colorado Springs, Colo., Feb. 18.—Governor Roosevelt was in Colorado Springs Sunday, the guest of P. B. Stewart, who was one of the members of the hunting party in Rio Blanco county during the first three weeks of the governor's outing. The vice president-elect was in the most excellent health and spirits. A public reception, it was expected, will be tendered him in this city this afternoon at about 5 o'clock. He expressed the desire that nothing in the nature of a banquet be held and the reception will be simply a public informal handshaking occasion, granted to the people of Colorado Springs by the vice president-elect.

To a reporter he said in part:

"The sensational stories, such as those describing adventures with bears and wolves, were deliberate and willful fabrications, and, I understand, were written by men who were not within hundreds of miles of where I was. We did not see a bear or wolf on the entire trip. Aside from lynx and smaller game, our hunting was confined to hunting the so-called mountain lions or panthers. I got 12 of them. I am obliged to go east in view of the nearness of the inauguration. I am, to my great regret, unable to address the Colorado legislature, in accordance with their kind request. I cannot sufficiently express my appreciation of the generous courtesy and hospitality with which I have been treated in Colorado, and I shall eagerly hail the first chance to again come to the state."

Topeka, Kan., Feb. 18.—Chief of Police Stahl filed charges with the city council against Police Judge Magraw, and asked for his removal from office. The chief charges the police judge with collusion with the jointists and conspiring to prevent harmony in the police force.

SMASH, SMASH, SMASH!

Hatchets and Axes Wielded by Liquor's Foes.

MRS. NATION ARRESTED 4 TIMES.

Announced She Would Resume Her Campaign in Topeka Today Again Joint, Livery Barn and Cold Storage Place Visited—Attended a Mass Meeting.

Topeka, Feb. 18.—About 6 o'clock Sunday morning as the big bell on the Church of the Assumption tower was striking the hour, Mrs. Nation sailed forth from the state house grounds at the head of about 500 men and women, all armed with hatchets and axes, and moved on some of the joints of the city.

In the crowd were a large number of students of Washburn college, some of the ministers of the city, and a number of professional and business men. The crowd marched in perfect military order, the men and women following their recognized leader, whom they seemed to trust implicitly. The company marched silently out of the state house grounds, down Kansas avenue, to the place on East Seventh street, kept by Ed Murphy. When Murphy's place was reached, the work of demolition began. Mrs. Nation, brandishing a new hatchet, headed the onslaught, uttering words of depreciation against the joint keepers as she sent her weapon through the first plate glass window at hand. Others followed her lead quickly. Amid the shouts of the crusaders and the dictatorial commands of the policemen present, trying to protect the property, glass was soon crashing to the ground on all sides. Next the door was smashed in with an ax and the beer kegs, bottles, mirrors and everything smashable were attacked. Hardly five minutes after Mrs. Nation had begun smashing what was once a well-furnished saloon was in complete ruins.

Mrs. Nation was arrested and she urged the crowd to continue the work, which they did after some hesitation. She went along with the officer. At the police station she was released promptly and hurried back to her work.

She entered a livery barn, in which some bars had been stored, and smashed them. Then at the head of 25 of her stoutest hearted followers she went to the Moser cold storage plant and entered upon a search for some liquor that she thought had been stored there, but it had been removed. This time Mrs. Nation was arrested by the county authorities and was taken to the jail in a patrol wagon. She was released and started to the center of the city and was arrested again, on a warrant, for the attack on Murphy's place. It was afternoon before she was released from jail on bond, and after taking dinner with Sheriff Cook she went to the First Christian church, where she was accosted by an officer with a warrant and taken to the county jail again. She stayed this time for about two hours, and finally her bond was signed by one of the joint keepers of the city, a prominent negro politician.

Last night Mrs. Nation announced that she would begin this morning where she left off Sunday, and would not rest until all the joints in Topeka have been closed.

BALLOT BEATS HATCHET.

Miss Susan B. Anthony Talked of Mrs. Nation's Crusade—Denoounced Men of Kansas.

Rochester, N. Y., Feb. 18.—Miss Susan B. Anthony celebrated her eighty-first birthday Friday, and considering the strain attending that ceremony was looking very well Sunday. When asked for her opinion of Mrs. Carrie Nation and her followers, Miss Anthony, in spite of her advanced years, warmed to her subject with the fire and enthusiasm of former years, and after denouncing the men of Kansas, declaring that neither party has been able to deal with the Prohibition party, said in part:

"The hatchet is the weapon of barbarism; the ballot is the one weapon of civilization.

"In Kansas, since 1887, Mrs. Nation, with all the women in the 286

cities of the state, has had the right to vote for mayor, for the members of the common council, and for every other officer of the municipality. Women equally with men have the responsibility. Therefore, the duty of Mrs. Nation, and all the women of Kansas, is to register and vote for only such men or women who will publicly pledge themselves to do their duty and to carefully retire to private life every officer who has failed to show his hand.

"By this process of weeding out the sympathizers with the saloon, and voting only for men and women true to principle, the women would see the fruit of their labors proving to themselves and to the world the power of the ballot over the hatchet."

AGAINST CHINESE COURT?

Expedition Being Formed, Which Foreign Envoys Believe to Be to Sian Fu.

Pekin, Feb. 18.—A few days ago Count Von Waldersee wrote to the generals under his supervision notifying them to have all their available troops ready in two weeks for an expedition lasting 80 days. General Chaffee and General Voyron, the French commander, received letters asking for their co-operation and expressing a desire to know what forces they can spare. In commencing his letter to General Chaffee, Count Von Waldersee says:

"Owing to the unsatisfactory nature of the negotiations for peace and also to circumstances rendering such a course desirable, it will probably be necessary to resume military operations on a large scale, especially toward the west."

It is not thought likely that General Chaffee will agree to such a plan without instructions from Washington. The French commander, however, is expected to do so. Sir Alfred Gazalee, the British commander, or General Voyron, the French commander, may command it.

Ere long an announcement is expected that the destination of the proposed expedition is Sian Fu. The foreign envoys believe its object to be to compel the Chinese to accept the terms of the powers. It is thought that when it becomes known that the expedition has started the imperial court will hasten to comply immediately with all the demands of the joint note.

The military are much elated at the prospect of active service. Many believe the Chinese army will strive to the uttermost to protect the province of Shen Si against invasion.

THE ASPHALT CONTROVERSY.

Likely to Go to Venezuelan Courts—United States Said to So Wish.

Willemstad, Island of Curacao, Feb. 18.—(via Haytien cable)—The asphalt controversy has been temporarily adjusted by the diplomacy of the United States minister to Venezuela, Mr. Francis B. Loomis, and the matter will doubtless go to the courts, as it is reported that the United States government desires a formal adjudication as to the rival interests involved. It is understood that Mr. Loomis has conveyed a request to this effect to the Venezuelan government.

Should the decision be against the New York and Bermudez company, then the question of intervention will be opened afresh.

Trouble is feared at Pitch Lake, should an attempt to eject the New York and Bermudez company be made before a decision has been reached by the courts.

SURPRISED REBEL LEADERS.

Villamor Wounded—Further Developments Against Carman.

Manila, Feb. 18.—Eighty men of the Fifth United States infantry and a detachments of scouts surprised the insurgent leaders, Vilamor and Alejandris, near Paperia. Villamor was wounded.

There had been further incriminating developments in the charges against Dr. D. M. Carman, the American contractor, who, with his partner, Theodoric Carranza, a Spanish merchant, was arrested Feb. 6, charged with furnishing supplies to aid the insurgents. Proof has been secured of his dealings with the rebels, showing that he supplied them with uniforms, provisions, money and some arms. The investigation will be continued.

Many insurgent officers were sur-

VICTIMS PERISHED.

Hope Gone and Water Turned
Into Burning Mine

THE ENTOMBED NUMBERED 61.

Dunsmuir, One of the Owners, Ordered
the Company Storekeepers to Give the Afflicted Families Whatever They Need
ed—Steps at Vancouver to Secure Aid

Vancouver, B. C., Feb. 18.—Additional details from the Union mines on Vancouver Island, where the terrible fatality occurred Friday afternoon, showed that the accident had thrown the towns of Cumberland and Nanaimo into a state of gloom. The Canadian Pacific Railway company's steamer Tartar arrived at Vancouver, from the coaling station at Union, about 12 miles from Cumberland. She brought two passengers, H. R. Raymond and George Bennett, both coal miners. Neither had any theory as to the cause of the explosion in No. 6 shaft, in which the accident occurred. They said the cause was not known and that it will never be known. When the Tartar left Union the late news from No. 6 shaft was that the flooding process was still being continued. The fire was still burning, although not so fiercely as during about the 36 hours preceding. The tremendous volume of water pouring into the mines from the continuous supply furnished by an eight-inch main was gradually performing the desired service, and by today it is confidently expected the fire will be extinguished. It will be several days, Raymond says, before the bodies of the 61 entombed miners can be recovered, because after the fire has been put out it will be necessary to pump the water out of the mine before a rescuing party can hope to get at the corpses now lying at the bottom of the shaft.

Shortly before the Tartar sailed from Union the steamer Joan arrived, having on board Premier James Dunsmuir, of the British Columbia government, who is one of the owners of the Cumberland mines. The families of the dead miners require financial assistance, which will be forthcoming from more than one source. The mayor of Vancouver has already taken steps to aid the bereaved families and other cities are taking similar action. In the meantime Premier Dunsmuir has ordered the storekeepers at Cumberland to give the distressed families what supplies they may need.

After the arrival of Premier Dunsmuir and his party at mine shaft No. 5, which connects with No. 6, it was opened and the big fan started to drive a volume of air down and to force back the gases and afterdamp from No. 6.

Later Manager Little, Inspector of Mines McGregor, Thomas Russell and a number of other mining engineers went down and were below about two hours. They reported on coming up that they had proceeded in some 800 or 900 feet, when they met body gas. Shaft No. 6 is flooded to a depth of 42 feet, and it is believed the fire has been extinguished. The members of the party who went down No. 5 found no smoke or sign of fire. Some believe that they will be able to get through to No. 6 and endeavor to get out some of the bodies today or tomorrow.

ETHELBERT NEVIN DEAD.

The Famous Musical Composer Died at New Haven, Conn.

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 18.—Ethelbert Nevin, musician and composer died suddenly here of heart disease. He was 38 years old. Mr. Nevin came to New Haven about five weeks ago to be associated with Prof. Parker, of Yale University, in his musical work. He was in perfect health until last Friday. He leaves a widow and two children.

Mr. Nevin until a few years ago made his residence in Edgeworth, near Pittsburgh, and then removed to New York, but a short time ago going to New Haven.

His wife was Miss Annie Paul, of Pittsburgh, Pa. As a composer Nevin attained a name hardly second to any American musician, and his songs are known throughout two continents. Among these are the "Rosary," "Narcissus," "Good Night," "Good Night,

"Beloved," and an arrangement of Heine's "Habbin Rielein."

ILLNESS OF DOWAGER EMPRESS.

Conflicting Reports as to Condition of Kaiser's Mother.

Berlin, Feb. 18.—The reports as to the condition of Dowager Empress Frederick, who is ill at Cronberg, are quite contradictory. The Local Anzeiger prints a dispatch from Homburg asserting that her condition is satisfactory; that Dr. Renvers, a Berlin specialist, who was called to attend her some time ago, has not been to Homburg for about three weeks, and that her private physician attended a ball Saturday evening. A Berlin news agency corroborates the statements that her condition is quite satisfactory.

On the other hand, the British easy takes a very serious view of the situation, believing that Emperor William is remaining at Cronberg in anticipation of a fatal issue, and refusing to believe the reports that the dowager empress goes out driving daily.

From private sources it is ascertained that the end is expected in a few weeks at the latest.

WORK OF MUNCHAUSENS.

Roosevelt Denies Bear and Wolf Stories, but Asserts His Prowess When Comes to Lions.

Colorado Springs, Colo., Feb. 18.—Governor Roosevelt was in Colorado Springs Sunday, the guest of P. B. Stewart, who was one of the members of the hunting party in Rio Blanco county during the first three weeks of the governor's outing. The vice-president-elect was in the most excellent health and spirits. A public reception, it was expected, will be tendered him in this city this afternoon at about 5 o'clock. He expressed the desire that nothing in the nature of a banquet be held and the reception will be simply a public informal handshaking occasion, granted to the people of Colorado Springs by the vice-president-elect.

To a reporter he said in part:

"The sensational stories, such as those describing adventures with bears and wolves, were deliberate and wilful fabrications, and, I understand, were written by men who were not within hundreds of miles of where I was. We did not see a bear or wolf on the entire trip. Aside from lynx and smaller game, our hunting was confined to hunting the so-called mountain lions or panthers. I got 12 of them. I am obliged to go east in view of the nearness of the inauguration. I am, to my great regret, unable to address the Colorado legislature, in accordance with their kind request. I cannot sufficiently express my appreciation of the generous courtesy and hospitality with which I have been treated in Colorado, and I shall eagerly hail the first chance to again come to the state."

SMASH, SMASH, SMASH!

Hatchets and Axes Wielded by Liquor's Foes.

MRS. NATION ARRESTED 4 TIMES.

Announced She Would Resume Her Campaign in Topeka Today Again Joint, Livery Barn and Cold Storage Place Visited—Attended a Mass Meeting.

Topeka, Feb. 18.—About 6 o'clock Sunday morning as the big bell on the Church of the Assumption tower was striking the hour, Mrs. Nation sailed forth from the state house grounds at the head of about 500 men and women, all armed with hatchets and axes, and moved on some of the joints of the city.

In the crowd were a large number of students of Washburn college, some of the ministers of the city, and a number of professional and business men. The crowd marched in perfect military order, the men and women following their recognized leader, whom they seemed to trust implicitly. The company marched silently out of the state house grounds, down Kansas avenue, to the place on East Seventh street, kept by Ed Murphy. When Murphy's place was reached, the work of demolition began. Mrs. Nation, brandishing a new hatchet, headed the onslaught, uttering words of depreciation against the joint keepers as she sent her weapon through the first plate glass window at hand. Others followed her lead quickly. Amid the shouts of the crusaders and the dictatorial commands of the policemen present, trying to protect the property, glass was soon crashing to the ground on all sides. Next the door was smashed in with an ax and the beer kegs, bottles, mirrors and everything smashable were attacked. Hardly five minutes after Mrs. Nation had begun smashing what was once a well-furnished saloon was in complete ruins.

Mrs. Nation was arrested and she urged the crowd to continue the work, which they did after some hesitation. She went along with the officer. At the police station she was released promptly and hurried back to her work.

She entered a livery barn, in which some bars had been stored, and smashed them. Then at the head of 25 of her stoutest hearted followers she went to the Moser cold storage plant and entered upon a search for some liquor that she thought had been stored there, but it had been removed. This time Mrs. Nation was arrested by the county authorities and was taken to the jail in a patrol wagon. She was released and started to the center of the city and was arrested again, on a warrant, for the attack on Murphy's place. It was afternoon before she was released from jail on bond, and after taking dinner with Sheriff Cook she went to the First Christian church, where she was accosted by an officer with a warrant and taken to the county jail again. She stayed this time for about two hours, and finally her bond was signed by one of the joint keepers of the city, a prominent negro politician.

Last night Mrs. Nation announced that she would begin this morning where she left off Sunday, and would not rest until all the joints in Topeka have been closed.

BALLOT BEATS HATCHET.

Mrs. Susan B. Anthony Talked of Mrs. Nation's Crusade—Denounced Men of Kansas.

Rochester, N. Y., Feb. 18.—Miss Susan B. Anthony celebrated her eighty-first birthday Friday, and considering the strain attending that ceremony was looking very well Sunday. When asked for her opinion of Mrs. Carrie Nation and her followers, Miss Anthony, in spite of her advanced years, warmed to her subject with the fire and enthusiasm of former years, and after denouncing the men of Kansas, declaring that neither party has been able to deal with the Prohibition party, said in part:

"The hatchet is the weapon of barbarism; the ballot is the one weapon of civilization."

"In Kansas, since 1887, Mrs. Nation, with all the women in the 286

cities of the state, has had the right to vote for mayor, for the members of the common council, and for every other officer of the municipality. Women equally with men have the responsibility. Therefore, the duty of Mrs. Nation, and all the women of Kansas, is to register and vote for only such men or women who will publicly pledge themselves to do their duty and to carefully retire to private life every officer who has failed to do his hand."

"By this process of weeding out the sympathizers with the saloon, and voting only for men and women true to principle, the women would see the fruit of their labors proving to themselves and to the world the power of the ballot over the hatchet."

AGAINST CHINESE COURT?

Expedition Being Formed, Which Foreign Envoys Believe to Be to Sian Fu.

Pekin, Feb. 18.—A few days ago Count Von Waldersee wrote to the generals under his supervision notifying them to have all their available troops ready in two weeks for an expedition lasting 80 days. General Chaffee and General Voyron, the French commander, received letters asking for their co-operation and expressing a desire to know what forces they can spare. In commencing his letter to General Chaffee, Count Von Waldersee says:

"Owing to the unsatisfactory nature of the negotiations for peace and also to circumstances rendering such a course desirable, it will probably be necessary to resume military operations on a large scale, especially toward the west."

It is not thought likely that General Chaffee will agree to such a plan without instructions from Washington. The French commander, however, is expected to do so. Sir Alfred Gazalee, the British commander, or General Voyron, the French commander, may command it.

Ere long an announcement is expected that the destination of the proposed expedition is Sian Fu. The foreign envoys believe its object to be to compel the Chinese to accept the terms of the powers. It is thought that when it becomes known that the expedition has started the imperial court will hasten to comply immediately with all the demands of the joint note.

The military are much elated at the prospect of active service. Many believe the Chinese army will strive to the uttermost to protect the province of Shen Si against invasion.

THE ASPHALT CONTROVERSY.

Likely to Go to Venezuelan Courts—United States said to So Wish.

Willemstad, Island of Curacao, Feb. 18.—(via Haytien cable)—The asphalt controversy has been temporarily adjusted by the diplomacy of the United States minister to Venezuela, Mr. Francis B. Loomis, and the matter will doubtless go to the courts, as it is reported that the United States government desires a formal adjudication as to the rival interests involved. It is understood that Mr. Loomis has conveyed a request to this effect to the Venezuelan government.

Should the decision be against the New York and Bermudez company, then the question of intervention will be opened afresh.

Trouble is feared at Pitch Lake, should an attempt to eject the New York and Bermudez company be made before a decision has been reached by the courts.

SURPRISED REBEL LEADERS.

Villamor Wounded—Further Developments Against Carman.

Manila, Feb. 18.—Eighty men of the Fifth United States infantry and a detachments of scouts surprised the insurgent leaders, Villamor and Alejandris, near Paperia. Villamor was wounded.

There had been further incriminating developments in the charges against Dr. D. M. Carman, the American contractor, who, with his partner, Theodorio Carranza, a Spanish merchant, was arrested Feb. 6, charged with furnishing supplies to aid the insurgents. Proof has been secured of his dealings with the rebels, showing that he supplied them with uniforms, provisions, money and some arms. The investigation will be continued.

Many insurgent officers were surprised.

EVILS OF CANTEEN.

Rev. Dr. Dodge Said Liquor Wrecked Many Volunteers.

OVER $450,000 SPENT FOR DRINK.

So Asserted General Secretary Dunn, of the National Temperance Society, at a Meeting in New York—Rev. Dr. Burrell One of the Speakers.

New York, Feb. 18.—A meeting under the auspices of the National Temperance society was held last night in the Broadway tabernacle. Rev. D. Stuart Dodge, D. D., said there were immense numbers of young men who had escaped climatic disease and bullets during the Spanish war and who came back to their homes drunkards and physical wrecks on account of the army canteen.

General Secretary J. B. Dunn, of the National Temperance society, said that the evils laid bare by the Spanish war aroused public sentiment and led to the passage of the bill by congress abolishing the saloon in the various camps.

"During the war," said Secretary Dunn, "many communities had to take up collections to help the wives and families of soldiers who were squandering their pay at the canteen. During that short war over $450,000 was spent for drink at one of the big camps in the south. The government of the United States has no right to be interested in the sale of liquor."

Rev. Dr. Burrell, among other things, said:

"There is a bill before the New York state legislature to allow the sale of liquor on Sunday during the Pan-American exposition at Buffalo, but it will not pass. There is also a bill to re-establish the canteen in the army pending in Washington, and it is not going to pass. The bills prohibiting the sale of liquor to the natives of Hawaii and other Pacific islands ought to pass."

SEVERE COLD IN EUROPE.

Numerous Deaths Were Reported—Small Wrecks Occurred Off the Coast of Spain.

London, Feb. 18.—Some of Europe was experiencing a return of winter weather. Severe cold and snowstorms were reported from England, Germany, Italy, Austria and Russia. The blizzard continued in the Odessa district. In Switzerland many villages were cut off. Numerous deaths were reported.

Paris, Feb. 18.—Very severe weather and heavy snowstorms were reported throughout France. Snow had fallen at intervals in Paris. Snow falls were also reported in Algiers, where several natives had been frozen to death. Telegraphic communication with the interior is partially interrupted.

Madrid, Feb. 18.—Throughout Spain the weather is intensely cold, the thermometer registering eight degrees below zero in Madrid. Snow has fallen in Murcia and in Palma, capital of the island of Majorca, where snowstorms have been practically unknown. A heavy gale is sweeping the southern coast, and eight small wrecks are reported from Cadiz.

RETALIATION OF RUSSIA.

Some Opinions of Discriminating Duty Against American Iron and Steel Manufacturers.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 18.—Shrewd observers in St. Petersburg believe that the Russian minister of finance, M. de Witte, in imposing a discriminating duty on American manufacturers of iron and steel, was not only animated by a desire to protect Russian sugar producers, but was eager to seize an opportunity to mobilize Russia's industrial army, with a view to proving its ability to stand the test of a tariff war. It is believed, moreover, that he desires to impress Germany even more than the United States.

The Russian press does not give any particular approval to the experiment. The Bourse Gazette, usually influenced by the minister of finance, in part, warns both sides against implicit faith in the Bismarckian theory that tariff wars don't disturb good political relations, pointing out that experience has shown the opposite to be the case as a rule.

Americans here have long been convinced that one of the most formidable obstacles to the developments of America's export trade with Russia is the lack of sufficient return cargoes to make a direct steamship line between New York and St. Petersburg profitable. Therefore they deplore any action that would tend to aggravate the difficulty.

NEGRO FIEND LYNCHED.

He Murdered a Man, Then Killed His Wife and Two Children and Ransacked the House.

New Orleans, Feb. 18.—A negro named Tiss Jackson was lynched near St. Peter, a station on the Texas and Pacific railroad, about 20 miles above the city. He visited the home of Alexander Bourgois, the engineer of the draining machinery on Bell Point plantation, some distance from the plantation quarters, going there on a tricycle. He told Bourgois the manager wanted him and the engineer mounted the tricycle with him. A little way further on Jackson stabbed the engineer in the back and then threw the body into a ditch. He then returned to the house and butchered Mrs. Bourgois and her two babies and ransacked the house. Two boys were visiting the family and when they caught the first glimpse of the attack on Mrs. Bourgois they hid in the woods.

After the negro's departure they went to St. Peter and gave the alarm and returned with a mob of several hundred. The negro was traced to his home, fully identified by the boys and was hung and his body riddled with bullets before the sheriff arrived.

TRIED TO PROMOTE NUISANCE.

Good Citizens Opposed, So Fleischmann and Hobart Resigned.

Cincinnati, Feb. 18.—Mayor Julius Fleischmann and W. N. Hobart resigned as directors of the Cincinnati May Music Festival association. The mayor was a liberal patron of the biennial musical events here. Hobart had been a director in this association for about a quarter of a century, and connected with it since its organization. He had been president of it for 18 years.

These resignations were due to the opposition of others in the May festival directory to the contest that was scheduled for last Friday night between Jeffries and Ruhlin.

Hobart, who had been noted as a factor in public spirited enterprises, was one of the members of the old Saengerfest board and also a director in the Saengerfest Athletic association. It was claimed that some of their associates in the May festival directory were most severe in their criticisms of the arrangements for the pugilistic affair.

MAYOR VAN WYCK DISAPPROVED.

But the Police Bill Is Likely to Become Law Nevertheless.

New York, Feb. 18.—It was learned Sunday that Mayor Van Wyck on Saturday evening returned to Albany the police bill with his disapproval attached.

The mayor's message, it was expected, would reach Albany today. It is believed the bill will be passed over the veto by both houses of the legislature and that the governor will then sign it.

Actor Mantell 'd.

Philadelphia, Feb. 18.—Robert B. Mantell, the actor, was required to furnish bail in $600 for his appearance in court on a writ of habeas corpus instituted by Miss Emma Behrens, his sister-in-law. Miss Behrens has been endeavoring to secure possession of Ethel Robinson, the 5-year-old child of Mantell's former wife, the late Charlotte Behrens. Miss Behrens claimed that her sister, prior to her marriage to Mantell, appointed her guardian of the child.

SOME EVENTS IN BRIEF.

Joseph McIntyre, of near Wurtemburg, Pa., fell down a flight of stairs, breaking his neck, and died almost instantly.

At New Castle, Pa., James J. Morrissey, a brakeman, lost his life by being cut in two under the wheels of a freight car from which he slipped and fell.

DIVORCE LAWS CRIMINAL.

Representative Tayler Pointed Out Necessity For an Amendment to the Constitution.

Washington, Feb. 18.—There is no legal obstacle to a man's having a lawful wife in nearly every state in the Union and living with each one a week at a time in turn. That is the way Representative Tayler, of Ohio, sums up the powers on the subject of marriage and divorce possessed by the proud American sovereign. Mr. Tayler wishes the constitution to be amended that congress will have authority to make laws on the subject of marriage and divorce that shall produce uniformity.

Mr. Tayler some time ago offered a resolution submitting an amendment to the constitution to the legislatures of the states.

THREE PREACHERS RESIGN.

Increased Number of Vacant Presbyterian Pulpits, In Cleveland, to Seven.

Cleveland, Feb. 18.—Rev. Hiram C. Haydn and Rev. W. H. Hurlburt, pastor and associate pastor of the old Stone (Presbyterian) church, resigned their offices Sunday. Dr. Haydn wishes to retire from the active ministry. Dr. Hurlburt's resignation was sent in so that the session may be free to appoint Dr. Haydn's successor.

Rev. E. E. Baker, pastor of the Woodland Avenue Presbyterian church, resigned Sunday, to accept a call to the First Presbyterian church in Oakland, Cal.

These changes in the local presbytery leaves seven large churches of that denomination without pastors in Cleveland.

JOHN T. MCUTCHEON ILL.

Artist and Newspaper Man to Be Taken Asheville, N. C.

Chicago, Feb. 18.—John T. McCutcheon, the well-known Chicago artist and newspaper man, who spent about two years in the Philippines and who for several weeks had been seriously ill with pneumonia, will be taken to Asheville, N. C., in a short time.

Unfortunate symptoms developed during last week, and his friends became alarmed at his condition. As a consequence arrangements were made for a private car, which will be placed at the disposal of Mr. McCutcheon. Trained nurses will accompany him, as will also George Ade, his close friend and co-laborer. The doctors who attended Mr. McCutcheon declared that the tropical fever had so infested his entire system that nothing but a change of climate would save his life.

Denmark Asserted to Have Ended Alleged Negotiations With America.

London, Feb. 18.—"The Danish government," says the Copenhagen correspondent of The Daily Mail, "has suddenly broken off all dealings with the United States regarding the sale of the Danish West Indies. This is due to a satisfactory offer made by the Danish East Asian Steamship company to assist in the future to administer the islands. The American government has been notified as to this decision."

CHASE OF DE WET.

Kitchener and Staff Reached De Aar to Superintend It.

London, Feb. 18.—A dispatch to The Daily Telegraph from De Aar, dated Feb. 16, confirmed the report of the arrival there of Lord Kitchener and his staff to superintend the chase of General De Wet. The correspondent says:

De Wet's force is now denuded of almost all transport vehicles, and his horses are exhausted."

Other South American dispatches report that several columns are pursuing General De Wet, whose exact whereabouts, however, is not indicated.

A Dreadful Moment.

A conductor on the Park line had an experience the other day that is quite certain to cause him many uncomfortable minutes in the future. His car stopped at Spruce street to let a middle-aged lady on, and as she took her seat the conductor gave the motorman two bells, and the car shot ahead. When the conductor entered the car, the woman in question was looking out of the window and did not see his outstretched hand.

"Fare, please," remarked the conductor.

The woman evidently did not hear him, for she did not turn her head. Neither did she hold out the necessary coin.

"Fare, please," said the conductor in a louder tone.

But the woman paid no heed. Then the conductor touched her on the shoulder and in a tone of voice that rang through the car exclaimed:

"Your fare, please, lady!"

Then the woman turned hastily around and looked at the conductor. The knight of the bellcord gave one gasp and fled to the back platform.

The woman was his mother-in-law.—Omaha World-Herald.

EVILS OF CANTEEN.

Rev. Dr. Dodge Said Liquor Wrecked Many Volunteers.

OVER $450,000 SPENT FOR DRINK.

So Asserted General Secretary Dunn, of the National Temperance Society, at a Meeting in New York—Rev. Dr. Burrell One of the Speakers.

New York, Feb. 18.—A meeting under the auspices of the National Temperance society was held last night in the Broadway tabernacle. Rev. D. Stuart Dodge, D. D., said there were immense numbers of young men who had escaped climatic disease and bullets during the Spanish war and who came back to their homes drunkards and physical wrecks on account of the army canteen.

General Secretary J. B. Dunn, of the National Temperance society, said that the evils laid bare by the Spanish war aroused public sentiment and led to the passage of the bill by congress abolishing the saloon in the various camps.

"During the war," said Secretary Dunn, "many communities had to take up collections to help the wives and families of soldiers who were squandering their pay at the canteen. During that short war over $450,000 was spent for drink at one of the big camps in the south. The government of the United States has no right to be interested in the sale of liquor."

Rev. Dr. Burrell, among other things, said:

"There is a bill before the New York state legislature to allow the sale of liquor on Sunday during the Pan-American exposition at Buffalo, but it will not pass. There is also a bill to re-establish the canteen in the army pending in Washington, and it is not going to pass. The bills prohibiting the sale of liquor to the natives of Hawaii and other Pacific islands ought to pass."

SEVERE COLD IN EUROPE.

Numerous Deaths Were Reported—Small Wrecks Occurred Off the Coast of Spain.

London, Feb. 18.—Some of Europe was experiencing a return of winter weather. Severe cold and snow storms were reported from England, Germany, Italy, Austria and Russia. The blizzard continued in the Odessa district. In Switzerland many villages were cut off. Numerous deaths were reported.

Paris, Feb. 18.—Very severe weather and heavy snowstorms were reported throughout France. Snow had fallen at intervals in Paris. Snow falls were also reported in Algiers, where several natives had been frozen to death. Telegraphic communication with the interior is partially interrupted.

Madrid, Feb. 18.—Throughout Spain the weather is intensely cold, the thermometer registering eight degrees below zero in Madrid. Snow has fallen in Murcia and in Palma, capital of the island of Majorca, where snowstorms have been practically unknown. A heavy gale is sweeping the southern coast, and eight small wrecks are reported from Cadiz.

RETALIATION OF RUSSIA.

Some Opinions of Discriminating Duty Against American Iron and Steel Manufacturers.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 18.—Shrewd observers in St. Petersburg believe that the Russian minister of finance, M. de Witte, in imposing a discriminating duty on American manufacturers of iron and steel, was not only animated by a desire to protect Russian sugar producers, but was eager to seize an opportunity to mobilize Russia's industrial army, with a view to proving its ability to stand the test of a tariff war. It is believed, moreover, that he desires to impress Germany even more than the United States.

The Russian press does not give any particular approval to the experiment. The Bourse Gazette, usually influenced by the minister of finance, in part, warns both sides against implicit faith in the Bismarckian theory that tariff wars don't disturb good political relations, pointing out that experience has shown the opposite to be the case as a rule.

Americans here have long been convinced that one of the most formidable obstacles to the developments of America's export trade with Russia is the lack of sufficient return cargoes to make a direct steamship line between New York and St. Petersburg profitable. Therefore they deplore any action that would tend to aggravate the difficulty.

NEGRO FIEND LYNCHED.

He Murdered a Man, Then Killed His Wife and Two Children and Ransacked the House.

New Orleans, Feb. 18.—A negro named Tins Jackson was lynched near St. Peter, a station on the Texas and Pacific railroad, about 20 miles above the city. He visited the home of Alexander Bourgois, the engineer of the draining machinery on Bell Point plantation, some distance from the plantation quarters, going there on a tricycle. He told Bourgois the manager wanted him and the engineer mounted the tricycle with him. A little way further on Jackson stabbed the engineer in the back and then threw the body into a ditch. He then returned to the house and butchered Mrs. Bourgois and her two babies and ransacked the house. Two boys were visiting the family and when they caught the first glimpse of the attack on Mrs. Bourgois they hid in the woods.

After the negro's departure they went to St. Peter and gave the alarm and returned with a mob of several hundred. The negro was traced to his home, fully identified by the boys and was hung and his body riddled with bullets before the sheriff arrived.

TRIED TO PROMOTE NUISANCE.

Good Citizens Opposed, So Fleischmann and Hobart Resigned.

Cincinnati, Feb. 18.—Mayor Julius Fleischmann and W. N. Hobart resigned as directors of the Cincinnati May Music Festival association. The mayor was a liberal patron of the biennial musical events here. Hobart had been a director in this association for about a quarter of a century, and connected with it since its organization. He had been president of it for 18 years.

These resignations were due to the opposition of others in the May festival directory to the contest that was scheduled for last Friday night between Jeffries and Ruhlin.

Hobart, who had been noted as a factor in public spirited enterprises, was one of the members of the old Saengerfest board and also a director in the Saengerfest Athletic association. It was claimed that some of their associates in the May festival directory were most severe in their criticisms of the arrangements for the pugilistic affair.

MAYOR VAN WYCK DISAPPROVED.

But the Police Bill Is Likely to Become Law Nevertheless.

New York, Feb. 18.—It was learned Sunday that Mayor Van Wyck on Saturday evening returned to Albany the police bill with his disapproval attached.

The mayor's message, it was expected, would reach Albany today. It is believed the bill will be passed over the veto by both houses of the legislature and that the governor will then sign it.

Actor Mantell Dead.

Philadelphia, Feb. 18.—Robert B. Mantell, the actor, was required to furnish bail in $600 for his appearance in court on a writ of habeas corpus instituted by Miss Emma Behrens, his sister-in-law. Miss Behrens has been endeavoring to secure possession of Ethel Robinson, the 5-year-old child of Mantell's former wife, the late Charlotte Behrens. Miss Behrens claimed that her sister, prior to her marriage to Mantell, appointed her guardian of the child.

SOME EVENTS IN BRIEF.

Joseph McIntyre, of near Wurtemburg, Pa., fell down a flight of stairs, breaking his neck, and died almost instantly.

At New Castle, Pa., James J. Morrisey, a brakeman, lost his life by being cut in two under the wheels of a freight car from which he slipped and fell.

DIVORCE LAWS CRIMINAL.

Representative Tayler Pointed Out Necessity for an Amendment to the Constitution.

Washington, Feb. 18.—There is no legal obstacle to a man's having a lawful wife in nearly every state in the Union and living with each one a week at a time in turn. That is the way Representative Tayler, of Ohio, sums up the powers on the subject of marriage and divorce possessed by the proud American sovereign. Mr. Tayler wishes the constitution to be amended that congress will have authority to make laws on the subject of marriage and divorce that shall produce uniformity.

Mr. Tayler some time ago offered a resolution submitt'ing an amendment to the constitution to the legislatures of the states.

SPENT QUIET SUNDAY.

Steel Combines May Make Statement Tomorrow or Wednesday.

New York, Feb. 18.—The Tribune was expected to say today, in part, in regard to the new steel combination:

Officers and lawyers who have been hard at work the last week on the last details of the deal spent a quiet Sunday. Another conference will be held today. An official statement may be looked for either tomorrow or Wednesday, when the consummation of the great consolidation will have been effected.

THREE PREACHERS RESIGN.

Increased Number of Vacant Presbyterian Pulpits, In Cleveland, to Seven.

Cleveland, Feb. 18.—Rev. Hiram C. Haydn and Rev. W. H. Hurlburt, pastor and associate pastor of the old Stone (Presbyterian) church, resigned their offices Sunday. Dr. Haydn wishes to retire from the active ministry. Dr. Hurlburt's resignation was sent in so that the session may be free to appoint Dr. Haydn's successor.

Rev. E. E. Baker, pastor of the Woodland Avenue Presbyterian church, resigned Sunday, to accept a call to the First Presbyterian church in Oakland, Cal.

These changes in the local presbytery leaves seven large churches of that denomination without pastors in Cleveland.

JOHN T. McCUTCHEON ILL.

Artist and Newspaper Man to Be Taken to Asheville, N. C.

Chicago, Feb. 18.—John T. McCutcheon, the well-known Chicago artist and newspaper man, who spent about two years in the Philippines and who for several weeks had been seriously ill with pneumonia, will be taken to Asheville, N. C., in a short time.

Unfortunate symptoms developed during last week, and his friends became alarmed at his condition. As a consequence arrangements were made for a private car, which will be placed at the disposal of Mr. McCutcheon. Trained nurses will accompany him, as will also George Ade, his close friend and co-laborer.

The doctors who attended Mr. McCutcheon declared that the tropical fever had so infested his entire system that nothing but a change of climate would save his life.

DEAL SAID TO BE OFF.

Denmark Asserted to Have Ended Alleged Negotiations With America.

London, Feb. 18.—"The Danish government," says the Copenhagen correspondent of The Daily Mail, "has suddenly broken off all dealings with the United States regarding the sale of the Danish West Indies. This is due to a satisfactory offer made by the Danish East Asian Steamship company to assist in the future to administer the islands. The American government has been notified as to this decision."

CHASE OF DE WET.

Kitchener and Staff Reached De Aar to Superintend It.

London, Feb. 18.—A dispatch to The Daily Telegraph from De Aar, dated Feb. 16, confirmed the report of the arrival there of Lord Kitchener and his staff to superintend the chase of General De Wet. The correspondent says:

De Wet's force is now denuded of almost all transport vehicles, and his horses are exhausted."

Other South American dispatches report that several columns are pursuing General De Wet, whose exact whereabouts, however, is not indicated.

A Dreadful Moment.

A conductor on the Park line had an experience the other day that is quite certain to cause him many uncomfortable minutes in the future. His car stopped at Spruce street to let a middle aged lady on, and as she took her seat the conductor gave the motorman two bells, and the car shot ahead. When the conductor entered the car, the woman in question was looking out of the window and did not see his outstretched hand.

"Fare, please," remarked the conductor.

The woman evidently did not hear him, for she did not turn her head. Neither did she hold out the necessary coin.

"Fare, please," said the conductor in a louder tone.

But the woman paid no heed. Then the conductor touched her on the shoulder and in a tone of voice that rang through the car exclaimed:

"Your fare, please, lady!"

Then the woman turned hastily around and looked at the conductor. The knight of the bellcord gave one gasp and fled to the back platform.

The woman was his mother-in-law.—

A LONDON CRIMINAL.

THE FOG THIEF AND HOW HE PLIES HIS PECULIAR TRADE.

He Operates Boldly Both In the City and on the Thames—Carries Off His Plunder From Vans and Cabs Shrouded In the Dense Gloom.

Thousands of thieves long for fog with a great longing. Incredibly as it may seem, property worth tens of thousands of pounds is every year stolen from vans and lorries alone in London streets. Quite nine-tenths of this property disappears during fogs.

The leaders of the fog thief gangs usually have some little capital to start with. One of them affects to be a cartage contractor on a small scale. He takes very quiet premises that have a high boarding round and that are not overlooked. If he has plenty of cellarage, all the better. He has at least one smart trap and horse and two and sometimes three rogues to go with it.

It is during the late foggy afternoons and early evenings of winter that the hauls are made. Streets with warehouses—and not shops that are lighted brilliantly and early—on each side and that are often congested with traffic are mostly chosen. The small and smart though dingy and inconspicuous looking trap plunges into the thick of the traffic. It soon, in the gloom and murk, places itself immediately behind a van or lorry piled with packages of various kinds.

The men in the quick trap are all on the alert. One of them, a man chosen for his immense physical strength, goes to the head of the pony on some pretext. He soon has a package down from the van in front. He is provided with sharp cutting instruments, and he has a powerful piece of strap with a hook at one end. If there is a boy sitting behind the van, the men in the trap contrive to get him down by diverting his attention. Even with a view to distracting the possible attention of carters, the thieves generally get up an altercation, or "barney," among themselves or with others. They are men of colossal impudence and powers of abuse, and all attention becomes riveted upon them. In one case not far from Farringdon street last December they carried off one parcel of furs worth £700, the van boy being temporarily blinded, as alleged, by a lad with the thieves blowing some snuff into his face from a pea shooter and then disappearing.

One of the most notorious of these fog thieves was a little young fellow who crept along the back of a pony to its head. American jockey fashion, and hooked what he could from out of the van in front.

The great hauls of these men are when they follow cabs and private carriages from a railway station. In such cases they generally use two traps and horses. A cab is marked that has apparently valuable luggage on the top. This is followed till some dark street is reached where the way is narrow or congested; then the driver of one of the traps, that has a very swift pony harnessed to it, deliberately drives across the head of the cab or carriage horse.

Of course there is an angry altercation, and while this is going on the thieves on the other trap have got into the immediate rear of the luggage laden vehicle. One of the thieves goes along his horse's back and lifts the luggage down.

One of the hauls effected last winter in this way was worth £8,000 and was the property of Mr. de Silva, an Argentinian millionaire. The robbery took place not far from St. Pancras' church just before the shops were lighted up.

As the summer sun brings forth myriads of living creatures, so does a Thames fog bring out upon the dark and apparently deserted river a vast horde of thieves. At least a dozen of the wharf and lighter owners complain of losing from their respective wharves as much as from one to six hundred pounds' worth of coal alone every year.

The reader can learn at any riverside house frequented by tugboat men that there are scores, literally scores, of tugs on the river that have never bought a pennyworth of coal for great numbers of years. The Thames police would tell that same reader that men have retired on competencies who have been reported to have made their whole fortune out of coal stolen with impunity on the river.

The police are helpless over the vast expanse of river and in the labyrinthine backwaters. If they raid one of the pirate boats in the gloom and darkness, the spoil is turned out to the bottom of the river in a trice. If this sort of thing can be done to such an extent with a commodity like coal, it may be imagined what befalls other valuable property on wharves or in lighters.

The fraudulent picker up of the river blesses the fog. The picker up is a man who notices that certain barges with valuable cargoes are moored in such a way that, if they broke loose, they would entail vast expense. The picker up sees that these barges do break loose. That part of his work he does in dead secret. And then, making plenty of noise about it at this stage, he rescues from danger the very barges that he has set adrift and sends in a heavy salvage claim.—London Answers.

The Stars and Stripes at Acre.

A good American had been making some soul stirring remarks about the glorious star spangled banner when an Englishman who is pretty well Americanized told a little story apropos: "I remember once to have seen the stars and stripes applauded uproariously on a peculiar occasion. It happened many years ago when the British flag wasn't as popular in the United States as it is now and a party of us Englishmen were at a theater in New York considerably farther down town than theaters are now to be found on Broadway.

The play was 'Richard I,' and if you remember there is a scene in the play where Richard, after putting his foes to flight in terrific style, mounts the walls of Acre and plants the British colors there. Evidently the management knew the temper of the audience and felt that even under such circumstances the British flag would not be a good thing, so what did they do but give Richard the star spangled banner, and, by all the gods, he took it with him in the charge and planted it on Acre's walls. It was ridiculous, of course, and we Englishmen laughed, but the audience took it quite as the correct thing, and the way the people stormed and shouted and clapped was enough to have made Richard turn over in his grave. Historically it was open to criticism, but patriotically it was a howling success."—Washington Star.

Trigonometry In X Ray Work.

"Few people know," said Dr. J. C. Egelston while performing an operation at the City hospital, "that it takes trigonometry to locate a bullet in the body. But in every X ray operation in which the bullet or foreign substance is deeply imbedded a mathematical computation is necessary to show just how deep the bullet is. The X rays make the flesh transparent, leaving only the bones and foreign substance visible, so that you see just where the bullet is, and yet you don't know where it is. You know its latitude and longitude, so to speak, but those measurements are surface measurements, and you don't know how deep the object is beneath the surface. The point on the surface of the body beneath which the bullet is can be readily located, but how far beneath that point is the bullet?

"This is the question that trigonometry has to answer, and by knowing the answer a great deal of unnecessary cutting may be saved, and what might otherwise be a difficult and dangerous operation may be rendered comparatively safe and easy. If the bullet enters one side of the body, for instance, and lodges within an inch or two of the skin on the other side, the other side of the body would be the one from which to operate."—Kansas City Journal.

I. N. HATHAWAY DEAD.

He Was a Prominent Ohio Politician and a Friend of Garfield's.

Chardon, O., Jan. 31.—Hon. I. N. Hathaway, one of the most prominent men of Northern Ohio, died at his home here, aged 73 years. He was an intimate friend of President Garfield, also of Hon. Benjamin Wade, Joshua R. Giddings and other noted men.

Mr. Hathaway represented this district in the Philadelphia convention in 1848, which nominated Zachary Taylor, and the Chicago conventions which nominated General Grant in 1868 and Harrison in 1888. In 1872, and again in 1880, he was elected to the state senate.

The north pole is the mathematical point at the northern termination of the earth's axis. Whether land or water be there the phenomena of the sun during the polar day or of the stars during the night would indicate its position.

The Point of His Warning.

"You ain't acquainted around here much, be you?" asked the mountaineer of the man on horseback.

"No."

"I reckoned not. I don't believe I'd go down the trail that runs past Abe Gore's shack if I wab you. Abe had his boss stole last week."

"But this isn't his horse."

"You don't seem to understand. I ain't accusin' you of stealin' his boss. I'm simply intimatin' to you that at present Abe happens to be in need of a hoss purty bad. I wouldn't go down that road if I was you."—Indianapolis Sun.

A LONDON CRIMINAL.

THE FOG THIEF AND HOW HE PLIES HIS PECULIAR TRADE.

He Operates Boldly Both In the City and on the Thames—Carries Off His Plunder From Vans and Cabs Shrouded In the Dense Gloom.

Thousands of thieves long for fog with a great longing. Incredible as it may seem, property worth tens of thousands of pounds is every year stolen from vans and lorries alone in London streets. Quite nine-tenths of this property disappears during fogs.

The leaders of the fog thief gangs usually have some little capital to start with. One of them affects to be a cartage contractor on a small scale. He takes very quiet premises that have a high boarding round and that are not overlooked. If he has plenty of cellarage, all the better. He has at least one smart trap and horse and two and sometimes three rogues to go with it.

It is during the late foggy afternoons and early evenings of winter that the hauls are made. Streets with warehouses—and not shops that are lighted brilliantly and early—on each side and that are often congested with traffic are mostly chosen. The small and smart though dingy and inconspicuous looking trap plunges into the thick of the traffic. It soon, in the gloom and murk, places itself immediately behind a van or lorry piled with packages of various kinds.

The men in the quick trap are all on the alert. One of them, a man chosen for his immense physical strength, goes to the head of the pony on some pretext. He soon has a package down from the van in front. He is provided with sharp cutting instruments, and he has a powerful piece of strap with a hook at one end. If there is a boy sitting behind the van, the men in the trap contrive to get him down by diverting his attention. Even with a view to distracting the possible attention of carters, the thieves generally get up an altercation, or "barney," among themselves or with others. They are men of colossal impudence and powers of abuse, and all attention becomes riveted upon them. In one case not far from Farrington street last December they carried off one parcel of furs worth £700, the van boy being temporarily blinded, as alleged, by a lad with the thieves blowing some snuff into his face from a pea shooter and then disappearing.

One of the most notorious of these fog thieves was a lithe young fellow who crept along the back of a pony to its head. American jockey fashion, and hooked what he could from out of the van in front.

The great hauls of these men are when they follow cabs and private carriages from a railway station. In such cases they generally use two traps and horses. A cab is marked that has apparently valuable luggage on the top. This is followed till some dark street is reached where the way is narrow or congested; then the driver of one of the traps, that has a very swift pony harnessed to it, deliberately drives across the head of the cab or carriage horse.

Of course there is an angry altercation, and while this is going on the thieves on the other trap have got into the immediate rear of the luggage laden vehicle. One of the thieves goes along his horse's back and lifts the luggage down.

One of the hauls effected last winter in this way was worth £8,000 and was the property of Mr. de Silva, an Argentina millionaire. The robbery took place not far from St. Pancras' church just before the shops were lighted up.

As the summer sun brings forth myriads of living creatures, so does a Thames fog bring out upon the dark and apparently deserted river a vast horde of thieves. At least a dozen of the wharf and lighter owners complain of losing from their respective wharves as much as from one to six hundred pounds' worth of coal alone every year.

The reader can learn at any riverside house frequented by tugboat men that there are scores, literally scores, of tugs on the river that have never bought a pennyworth of coal for great numbers of years. The Thames police would tell that same reader that men have retired on competencies who have been reported to have made their whole fortune out of coal stolen with impunity on the river.

The police are helpless over the vast expanse of river and in the labyrinthine backwaters. If they raid one of the pirate boats in the gloom and darkness, the spoil is turned out to the bottom of the river in a trice. If this sort of thing can be done to such an extent with a commodity like coal, it may be imagined what befalls other valuable property on wharves or in lighters.

The fraudulent picker up of the river blesses the fog. The picker up is a man who notices that certain barges with valuable cargoes are moored in such a way that, if they broke loose, they would entail vast expense. The picker up sees that these barges do break loose. That part of his work he does in dead secret. And then, making plenty of noise about it at this stage, he rescues from danger the very barges that he has set adrift and sends in a heavy salvage claim.—London Answers.

The Stars and Stripes at Acre.

A good American had been making some soul stirring remarks about the glorious star spangled banner when an Englishman who is pretty well Americanized told a little story apropos: "I remember once to have seen the stars and stripes applauded uproariously on a peculiar occasion. It happened many years ago when the British flag wasn't as popular in the United States as it is now and a party of us Englishmen were at a theater in New York considerably farther down town than theaters are now to be found on Broadway. The play was 'Richard I,' and if you remember there is a scene in the play where Richard, after putting his foes to flight in terrific style, mounts the walls of Acre and plants the British colors there. Evidently the management knew the temper of the audience and felt that even under such circumstances the British flag would not be a good thing, so what did they do but give Richard the star spangled banner, and, by all the gods, he took it with him in the charge and planted it on Acre's walls. It was ridiculous, of course, and we Englishmen laughed, but the audience took it quite as the correct thing, and the way the people stormed and shouted and clapped was enough to have made Richard turn over in his grave. Historically it was away off, dramatically it was open to criticism, but patriotically it was a howling success."—Washington Star.

Trigonometry In X Ray Work.

"Few people know," said Dr. J. C. Egelston while performing an operation at the City hospital, "that it takes trigonometry to locate a bullet in the body. But in every X ray operation in which the bullet or foreign substance is deeply imbedded a mathematical computation is necessary to show just how deep the bullet is. The X rays make the flesh transparent, leaving only the bones and foreign substance visible, so that you see just where the bullet is, and yet you don't know where it is. You know its latitude and longitude, so to speak, but those measurements are surface measurements, and you don't know how deep the object is beneath the surface. The point on the surface of the body beneath which the bullet is can be readily located, but how far beneath that point is the bullet?

"This is the question that trigonometry has to answer, and by knowing the answer a great deal of unnecessary cutting may be saved, and what might otherwise be a difficult and dangerous operation may be rendered comparatively safe and easy. If the bullet enters one side of the body, for instance, and lodges within an inch or two of the skin on the other side, the other side of the body would be the one from which to operate."—Kansas City Journal.

Mr. Hathaway represented this district in the Philadelphia convention in 1848, which nominated Zachary Taylor, and the Chicago conventions which nominated General Grant in 1868 and Harrison in 1888. In 1872, and again in 1880, he was elected to the state senate.

JACK ECKER'S SALOON WAS BADLY WRECKED.

A Mob Wreak Vengeance on the Proprietor of a Rum Shop For Using a Baseball Bat

TO EJECT ONE OF HIS CUSTOMERS

Ecker Prepared to Defend Himself but His Wife Prevented the Use of a Revolver.

WAS ALL OVER WHEN POLICE ARRIVED

Mrs. Carrie Nation was several thousand miles from East Liverpool on Saturday night. Just the same there was a little smashing going on by way of a reminder that the Ceramic City is up-to-date when it comes to a fad, no matter if it consists of wearing one's coat inside out.

In the present instance the make-up of the raiders differed from the Kansas woman in that they were men. The victim was Jack Ecker, who conducts a gin mill on Lower Market street, near city hall.

It seems that J. F. Potts, who represents the Chicago Portrait company, had met with good success in this city, and Saturday evening when he decided to distribute a little of the coin he had made in this community, he had no trouble in making friends. Potts had a "roll on him," and manifested a desire to get rid of it in the shortest space of time. Besides the roll he had two sub-agents, J. R. Heath and J. C. Bronson, with him to help out when it came to a talk about his firm and their ability to furnish the best work "that ever was."

While this was going on the followers of the Sebring kiln drawer were not idle, and as a consequence the mirror was demolished and a number of other valuable articles torn to pieces. When the mob realized what they had done they retired in a confused mass, while the proprietor was hustled upstairs.

While all this was in progress Potts was being washed and cleaned up at Peake's place. About this time Officers Gill and Aufderheide happened along and escorted the disfigured individual to city hall, where they arrived in time to meet the balance of the police force, headed by Chief Thompson who had been called to the Exchange by a telephone message saying there was a riot in that vicinity.

As soon as an examination could be made it was found that the Chicago man was badly hurt, and Dr. Hamilton was summoned. The physician's investigations disclosed the presence of four wounds on the man's head, one in the center of his forehead, one above the left eye, another directly above at the edge of his hair and still another on top of the head. The two most prominent ones were sewed up and the man made as comfortable as possible, although he was unable to bear the pain toward the last and would not permit the doctor to proceed.

About this time Heath and Bronson appeared on the scene to see how their partner fared. When their identity was learned Chief Thompson placed them under arrest, and as Potts would not give security for their appearance they were locked up until Sunday morning. Potts put up $25 for his appearance and was permitted to go home.

There was a red headed man in the crowd, who it seems was sober and happened to be a spectator, but when a search was made he could not be found, and it is thought he wished to avoid being mixed up in the affair, although it was stated he knew all about the fight.

The injured man made his way to the pavement and thence down the street in a dazed condition to the or's office Sunday morning he was about the most dilapidated looking individual one would meet in a day's travel. He was surprised to find a charge of destroying property against him, but pleaded guilty and was fined $20 and costs.

His pals were brought out and after pleading guilty were assessed $9 60 each on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Some wonder was expressed by those who witnessed the scrimmage that Potts did not proceed against the saloon man, but he stated that he was getting down easy and would make no more trouble.

A large crowd saw the wind up of the affair and assert that Ecker had no occasion whatever to act as he did, and should be arrested and fined.

PRES. HUGHES HAS RETURNED HOME

States That He Succeeded In Accomplishing Some Good In Trenton For

BENEFIT OF ORGANIZED LABOR

Jigermen Still Have a Separate Local and Will Oppose the Adoption

OF THE NEW UNIFORM LIST

President A. S. Hughes, of the N. B. of O. P., arrived in this city from Trenton on Saturday, and reports having accomplished some good along the line of reviving interest in the organization which he represents.

Mr. Hughes stated that he does not consider it an impossibility to accomplish the complete organization of every trade in the east. The main opposition to the Brotherhood comes from the jigermen at Trenton, who are not nearly so strong as the stories sent out from that city would indicate.

Every other trade in Trenton is organized; possibly not as strong as the officers of the Brotherhood might wish, but still there is a foundation, and Mr. Hughes' visit to the east has gone a great way toward reviving the interest in the several local organizations. Particularly is this true of the younger tradesmen, who seem to manifest more interest in the welfare of their unions than the older men. This is taken as a very encouraging indication, and one which can not but be of incalculable benefit to the organization in the future. Taken all in all, the president is not at all discouraged at the result of his visit, having accomplished a great deal of good.

Some amusement was created among those of the operative potters who are on the inside by the unreliable statements of a Trenton correspondent on Friday.

There were many funny features among the two columns of inches, but the most amusing feature about the stuff was the statement that the handful of independent jigermen were about to compel the railroad corporations to adjust the freight rates to conform to the wishes of the eastern manufacturers. The most startling phase of the information, and the one which caused the amusement is that the majority of the potters in this city are unable to figure out how an organization composed of a corporal's guard of jigermen can do or say anything that would cause the railroad systems of the country to alter their freight rates.

A Trenton View of It.

In speaking of the mission of President Hughes the Trenton True American of Saturday says:

The mission of President Hughes who came east to reorganize the Brotherhood of Operative Potters, according to him, has been accomplished.

He left town yesterday afternoon for his home in East Liverpool. The results of Mr. Hughes' visit here can be no better explained than by the reports sent out by the officers in charge of the kilnmen's and sanitary pressers' unions.

In these branches of the trade especially Mr. Hughes has succeeded in swelling the membership and bringing back to the ranks members who had lost all interest in the meetings.

All the other unions have been more or less strengthened. The jigermen, who have been opposing the Brotherhood ever since the agitation for the uniform price list, are still a separate and independent organization, and according to its members, are liable to remain so.

Hughes made no attempt to arbitrate the trouble, and it is evident that he has given it up as a hopeless case. The next move on the part of the executive committee will no doubt be to try and prevail upon the potters in this city to accept the uniform list.

They will be compelled to do this in order to obtain any concessions from the Manufacturers' association.

Mr. Hughes, before leaving, was unable to tell what his future plans would be, and mentioned nothing about making another trip east.

TEN KILN POTTERY

THAT WILL BE THE SIZE OF LISBON'S NEW PLANT.

Mason, Thomas & Boch Make a Move That Pleases the County Seat People.

The new pottery to be erected at Lisbon by local parties will be 10 kilns instead of seven, and the Lisbon people are consequently much elated.

In speaking of the pottery the Patriot says:

"Pottery news has been quiet for the past few weeks and many have wondered what has become of the project, but it seems that while we have been wondering the plant has grown almost one-half.

"It is now the intention of Messrs. Mason, Thomas and Boch to build a pottery here almost one-half bigger than the one they contracted for. They agreed, for the bonus raised, to put up a seven-kiln pottery, five ordinary ones and two decorating, but for the same money they will build a 10-kiln pottery and have 15,000 feet more floor space. There will be four decorating kilns instead of two and a much larger number of people will be employed.

"George B. Harvey stated to a representative of this paper this morning that the contract for the stonework would be let next week and that just as soon as the weather will permit work will begin. The contract has already been awarded to the Union Fire Clay company of Coleman, for 1,000,000 brick.

"We are all looking forward to the time when work on this plant shall begin, as that means a boom in every line for Lisbon."

CHESTER MILL WILL NOT BE PUT IN OPERATION

That Is the Opinion Expressed by Millwright C. H. Davis Who Has Charge of the Removal of the Machinery.

ENGINEER STRAUSS THINKS DIFFERENT

A force of about 15 men have been engaged at the Chester sheet mill for the past two weeks removing a large quantity of machinery, which has been shipped to several other mills belonging to the trust. There it has been used to replace parts of the plant where new appliances are needed. The work is being done under the direction of Millwright C. H. Davis, son of one of the most prominent superintendents now in the employ of the trust, and up to the present three car loads of rails and other machinery have been torn down and loaded upon cars. Two of these were sent to Wellsville, probably gave rise to the rumor that the entire equipment was to be moved there. As a matter of fact the appliances at the Wellsville plant are, and have been for a long time, in very bad shape, and it was deemed more economical, when it was considered that there was no prospect for the Chester mill being operated for the present, to take what they needed from that plant rather than have it shipped from the factory.

The third car was sent to the Canal Dover mill, where it will replace a few of the worn parts. The Dover plant is working steadily and is one of the best and most modern equipped mills owned by the combine. Mr. Davis expresses the opinion that the Chester mill will never be operated, and backs that opinion with sound, logical argument. While he admits the advantage of the river as a means of transportation, he asserts this is of no practical value, owing to its being navigable but a few months in the year, for the shipment of finished product. The only way the Ohio could be utilized, he says, is for the shipping of raw material to the plant, which could be carried on while the river's at a navigable stage, and possibly enough material could be landed while it is in this condition to keep the plant supplied during the working season.

As a means of transporting the finished article to the ware houses in New York, the river would be a very expensive proposition, as the transfers necessary in order to get the stuff to its destination would involve more expense than the cost of shipping by rail, and more than overbalance the lower river freight rates.

The millwright told a News Review man he had no idea how long they would remain in Chester, as they might be ordered to get out more of the equipment as soon as they had completed the present orders. He stated it was not at all improbable that his force of men would be ordered to remove the whole equipment before they left the city.

This information, coming as it does from an individual who is certainly in a position to know, will not have a tendency to cheer the Chester residents, but it will have one good effect, and that is the suspense and speculation which has been going on for months will be over.

Mechanical Engineer Strauss, who had charge of the erection of the Chester mill, was in the city yesterday and he takes an entirely different view of the question. He says the mill will be started, and in speaking of the matter said:

"There is no use of the people getting excited over the mill, and the parties who have purchased lots haven't lost their money yet. The Chester mill will be started, but I don't know just how soon. The Chester mill has 12 extra rolls and because some of these are being taken to other mills owned by the trust the people should not become alarmed. If the trust did not intend to run the mill it would not have been purchased, but instead they would have paid the owners a bonus each year to have it remain idle. I am of the firm opinion that the mill will be put in operation before many months."

MAKE THEM HAPPY.

And it Can Be Done Without Costing You Very Much Money.

Two bright little girls in this city of East Liverpool have been quite sick lately. The winsome little maidens were very much loved and admired by two sedate business men, and the hearts of the latter were made tender and sad at the knowledge that their dear little friends were suffering. And so these two good Samaritans purchased some beautiful flowers and sent them to the homes of the two little maidens. The adults in the family tell of the joy those beautiful flowers brought into the lives and hearts of their little girls, who were so delighted that they could not wait until convalescent, but insisted upon sending warm thanks to the donors through the medium of a tiny little note. And it goes without saying that those merchants prize the note very highly. You can make hearts and lives happy on but a slight investment. Try it. Make some one happy.

SUNDAY SERVICES.

An Immense Audience Present at the First M. E. Church on Sunday Night.

Dr. Clark Crawford, pastor of the First M. E. church, delivered two notable sermons on Sunday, causing much favorable comment on account of the plain gospel truths contained therein, warning sinners to flee from the wrath to come, and plainly depicting the sorrow and anguish sure to follow a wicked and sinful life.

There was an immense audience present at the night service. Nine persons presented themselves at the altar at the after meeting, and the occasion was evidently one of intense spiritual earnestness and power. Several young men professed conversion.

Services as usual tonight at 7:45 and until further notice. Pastor and people will accord you a warm and hearty welcome. Strangers in the city have an especial invitation to be present.

Miss Sadie Raymond, one of the actresses taking part in the rendition of "Old Arkansaw" in this city Saturday night, met with an accident in the third act of the piece which came near putting an end to the performance.

In this act she is compelled to use a dagger, and in some manner the knife became entangled in some lace on the sleeve of her dress and the dagger came in contact with her right hand penetrating to the depth of almost an inch between her thumb and first finger.

The injury was a very painful one and resulted in the loss of considerable blood. A physician was called and the wound dressed. She was able with some difficulty to resume her role.

AN IRON WORKER IN TROUBLE

Police business picked up a little on Saturday night, and in addition to the haul at the Ecker saloon several other indiscreet persons who indulged too freely were run in.

Officers Gill and Aufderheide were called into the National House Saturday night by the proprietor, William G. Waither, and "Zip" Farmer was turned over to them on a charge of attempting to purchase a drink of intoxicants. "Zip" is a minor and the offense comes under the state law.

Sunday morning when arraigned Farmer was fined $6 60 by the mayor and he is still in jail.

Andrew Call was arrested by Officer Davidson Saturday night on a charge of intoxication. The mayor assessed him $5 60, and he is still in the coop.

Young Sam Dawson got a jag from the same booze that got Call into trouble, and was arrested by Officer Morris. He was given the same dose, and will keep Andrew company for some time to come.

William Martin is an iron worker and had been employed at the Mingo mill. He arrived in this city Saturday morning and had seven or eight whiskies and seven or eight beers. This was a little too much and when arrested he was clear out.

Mayor Davidson had him up Sunday morning and when his honor said $5 60 Martin wept as though his heart would break. He told a hard luck story about being broke, and continued to weep. The mayor told him if assured that he would be out of town within a few minutes he would let him go. Martin said he would require but 10 minutes, and his tears turned to joy when he made his way from the office.

John Duck, a resident of Huston addition, was at the mayor's office this morning, where he notified the authorities that his wife, Jennie Duck, had disappeared last Thursday and no trace of her could be found. Mr. Duck was very much concerned, and requested that the authorities lend what aid they could toward locating the missing woman.

It seems that when the couple were married some years ago Mrs. Duck had two children to a former husband. It is said that she placed them in an orphan asylum, being advised by her parents to do so, and that she has worried constantly on account of giving her consent to this move, and that at various times during the months that passed had threatened to make way with herself. In view of these facts it is thought by some that she may have carried out the threat.

COME DRY IN THE AMBULANCE

A Doctor's Story of a Man and a Woman, Each With a Broken Leg.

"When I was an ambulance surgeon," said the young family physician, "I used to start like a fire horse at the sound of the call. I was just as much interested in the work at the end of two years as I was the day I began. It was the excitement of the life that made me so fond of it. I had all sorts of experiences at all sorts of hours. There was an element of danger in it, too, but that only added to the charm."

"One night I had a call from the west side in the neighborhood of Chelsea square. It was for a drunken man who fell down and broke his leg. On the way back to the hospital with him I picked up a drunken woman to whom a similar accident had happened. There was nothing to do but put her in the ambulance along with the man."

"After that the ride across town was exciting enough for a cowboy. At first the patients sympathized with each other. Then they began to cry in chorus. At Broadway they fell to kissing each other. At Third avenue they were fighting like a pair of Kilkenny cats, and I had my hands full in keeping them apart. The woman had scratched the man's face dreadfully, and he had nearly closed her eye with a punch. When we struck the asphalt in Twenty-sixth street, they were singing 'We Have All Been There Before Many a Time,' and such singing! The uproar attracted a crowd who evidently thought I had an ambulance full of lunatics. When we reached the gate, they swore eternal friendship, and at the office they parted in tears."—New York Sun.

The Way to Win Strength.

The Romans won their empire by attacking their enemies one by one. Besides this, they did not attack a new enemy until they had conquered the old enemy. They went farther still and like the English in conquering India used their late enemies, and this is what we should do in learning and practicing games and athletics. It is of little use to try to conquer the whole empire at once. First conquer a part and make it your own. Then proceed to a second part and conquer that; and, if you can, let the parts which you have already conquered help you to conquer fresh parts.—Eustace H. Mills in Saturday Evening Post.

The Counterfeit Bill.

The average counterfeit bill shows better work on the right hand side than on the left. More care is taken to make the work accurate, because unless a man is left handed it is customary in counting a pile of bills to hold the left ends down and turn up only the right ends. The assistant in the city banks now reverses the process and turns the bills with his left hand.

Stylish.

"What's dem spots on you all's forehead?" asked Mr. Erastus Pinkley.

One of the officials of the road had invited a party of gentlemen to take a little pleasure excursion over a part of the line on his private car. Before the appointed day he was taken sick and called in his chef and commissary.

"Eph," he said, "I have asked these friends and can neither go with them nor disappoint them. I want you to give them the best there is in the larder and see that it is served as well as it would be at the best hotel in the world."

Eph scratched his head and looked troubled, but simply said, "Yes, sah."

On the return several of the gentlemen congratulated the official upon having such a "man," and one or two intimated that if Eph ever wanted another position he would have no trouble in securing it.

Finally Eph reported, "It wa' a great outin, sah," he assured his employer. "Yas, sah; dat's right, sah; a stupendious outin, sah. De gem'men all done me proud, and I tells 'em it wa' you, sah."

Then Eph showed the bill, and it was a stunner for length and amount. He stood hat in hand until the official said: "Pretty steep, Eph; pretty steep. Nothing left out and nothing but the best."

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 18, 1901.

JUDGE HOLLISTER.

Judge Hollister, of Cincinnati, asserts that "a prize fight is the worst sort of a public nuisance that can be named." The judge forgot the un-American saloon in this decision; but possibly his honor places them on the same level, as saloons, prize fighting, gambling and houses of ill-fame go hand in hand, fit agents in the service of the devil.

HOW HE LOVES HIM.

Potts, of the Lisbon Patriot, loves the present owner of the Canton News Democrat with a peculiar love; with what might be termed a left handed affection; and the pet names and titles he applies to the aforesaid Canton sheet would cause the risibles to rise on the tip of the beak of the pet parrot of the Criterion restaurant, and make Lyman Rinehart's South African monkey howl with unadulterated delight. Strangely intense is the affection existing between these two would-be leaders of Democracy in Columbian county.

A COWARDLY ACT.

A well known gentleman of this city is the recipient of a nasty valentine, sent by some coward of East Liverpool, but mailed at Allegheny City in order that the sender may escape detection and punishment. On the margin of the said valentine words are written reflecting upon the good name and character of the lady whom the recipient is paying attention to. The creatures who resort to such dirty work are unfit to be classed with humanity. They belong to the class known as graveyard ghouls. If detected, hot punishment will be dealt out in this case.

HOSPITAL PUZZLE SOLVED.

A workman in Knowles, Taylor & Knowles pottery believes that he has solved the financial end of the hospital puzzle. He states, that he was called upon in a similar case a few years ago, when he was making but $1.50 per day, and he gave $1.50, or a day's work. He now believes that every workman in East Liverpool, making high or low wages, will be willing to contribute one day's work to this noble project, and he believes that such a method of procedure, in company with the fund contributed by merchants, manufacturers, business and professional men, will easily raise the required sum. What think you of this workman's idea?

DON'T USE THEM.

Rounders and ward heelers and candidate bleeders are no longer endured in East Liverpool, and the candidate making use of them must have been raised in the backwoods and have never yet interviewed a locomotive, bicycle or street car motor. The day of this miserable class of contemptible rascals and confidence scoundrels has gone by in Columbian county, never again to return. As a rule they represented the brothel, the gambling hell and the infamous saloon, and their departure from the arena of local politics will be hailed with delight by every decent candidate and voter in the county. Selah.

NIPPED THE MAYOR.

Judge Hollister taught Mayor Fleischmann, of Cincinnati, a lasting and much needed lesson when he turned down that official, good and cold, respecting the permit of the mayor for a prize fight between two big bruisers. The Saengerfest Athletic club is also enjoined from accepting hereafter from the said mayor a permit for a sparring match, a glove contest or a prize fight. Some men need to be taught that they are very small when they come in conflict with the law which creates them. Again the News Review thanks Governor George Kilbom Nash for the course he has pursued in the enforcement of common law and clean government. We note the dawn of a better day in the political horizon. The entire Republican party of the state of Ohio has cause for rejoicing in the action of Governor Nash against prize fighting in this grand old Buckeye commonwealth.

SUNDAY DESECRATION.

It ought not to exist in East Liverpool. God has forbidden Sunday desecration, and the guilty man or woman shall not escape the penalty of an outraged divine law.

You may seemingly escape punishment; but such is not the reality. Sooner or later you will be called to account, even on this earth, while your reckoning in eternity will be a fearful one. There be men in this city who profess to know and to love God, and yet engage in business pursuits all the Sabbath day, pleading that business rivals do the same; that they cannot afford to lose the Sunday trade; that Sunday is their very best day. Oh, ye blind and foolish ones, will ye dare offer such weak and miserable and paltry excuses in the day of final judgment, in the presence of the Master? And where is the law of the land? What are our city officials doing? Where are the consciences of mayor, marshal and roundsmen? Are these men not just as guilty as are the law-breakers whom they have solemnly sworn to detect, arrest and bring to punishment? Plainly and truly they are, and the record shall be that they have been "weighed in the balance and found wanting." Sunday desecration shall cease. The flat has gone forth. The day of wrath is not far distant. Moral suasion has failed. More drastic measures will be called into requisition. Smile at this; but remember that you have had fair warning. Our skirts are clear.

Pay your honest debts, man, and walk uprightly, and be able to look your neighbor in the face and say that you owe no man anything save good will. There be men in this city of East Liverpool who have, on more than one occasion, been guilty of the crime of embezzlement; they have been detected and had the strong arm of the law reaching after them, when merciful and kindhearted men, responding to their cries and tears, came to their rescue and aided them financially; and now these same miserable creatures, placed in a position where they can easily repay the loan, absolutely refuse to do so, simply because the law can no longer reach them. We long to name them in these columns, so that business men and merchants, and the public at large may know them, and mete out to them the punishment the dead beats so richly merit. Pay your debts you miserable creatures; or at least make the attempt. THE SALOONISTS.

The infamous keepers of joints and dens of vice in Kansas are now talking of organized resistance to the efforts made to enforce the law and drive them out of existence. At one place the keepers of these rum holes are attempting to compromise the trouble by saying that they will agree to close their illegal dives at midnight, and not keep open night and day, as they have dared to do in the past. Saloons are illegal in the state of Kansas. Where be the officers of the law? What is the matter with the governor of the state? If the civil officials are so iniquitous and vile as to wink at lawlessness and lawbreaking, why not make use of the military arm of the law, as did our own Governor Nash in the case of the bruisers, Jeffries and Ruhlin? The day of reckoning is surely coming. The handwriting is on the wall. Judgment is merely suspended. Punishment is merely delayed. The arm of justice will yet smite heavily, and that right early. The masses all over the nation are awakening to the enormity of the crime which the infamous liquor league has fastened upon our land. Kansas is merely an outpost or cossack post. The skirmish line of the enemy will be driven in ere long. Their main force may check the armies of reformation and clean government temporarily; but the great reserves of the entire nation will yet be brought to the front and the Rum Devil be eventually overthrown. We believe that the Christian and conservative element of the United States are ready for the battle. We believe that the great masses of our country are sick and weary of the actually hellish domination of the liquor league, and that they are demanding that this great and grand and glorious republic shall sever, once and forever, its damnable contract and partnership with the liquor traffic. May our God speed the day. Are you ready for the fray, Christian men and women, ye who call yourselves children of God? The writer is fully ready, and has dedicated his life to the Master along this line of conflict, ready and eager to do battle to the limit against the Rum Devil and his forces, the arch enemy of our God and our common humanity.

10 GALLON KEG OF SHERRY WINE

Was Stolen From the Outbound Platform at Freight Station Friday Night.

THIEVES HAVE BEEN ARRESTED

Two Call Boys and Sam Dawson Were the Parties Who Took the Wine.

C. & P. DETECTIVES WERE HERE

Last Thursday night a 10-gallon keg of sherry wine was stolen from the outbound platform of the freight station. The crew at the station had overlooked the package and it was left outside when the place was locked up.

When the theft was discovered on Friday morning, Captain Baker, of the detective force, was notified, and with Detectives Schilling and Joseph Moore, have been working on the case until this morning.

Suspicion was directed toward Sam Dawson and two of the Call boys, and the local police force, who had been asked to assist in the case, at once began an investigation, with the result that Sam and Andrew Call were caught on Saturday night very drunk. Dawson had in his possession a pint beer bottle containing a quantity of the sherry. As soon as Call found himself under arrest he made a clean breast of the whole affair, implicating his brothers, Moses and William, at the same time asserting that he had nothing to do with the robbery. EAST END. PUTNAM THINKS HE SAW A GHOST

ON LAST FRIDAY NIGHT

The Ghost Closely Resembled a Former Nightwatchman Who Died Recently.

PUTNAM MAY RESIGN POSITION

On duty at midnight in a weird and lonely hollow, with the ghost of a former night watchman as a companion, is rather a unique and unpleasant experience, but such were the conditions under which Jack Putnam, the night watchman at the artificial gas plant, claims to have labored under last Friday night.

Mr. Putnam says just before midnight his attention was attracted by the sound of muffled footsteps falling in slow and measured tread at the south end of the building. When he proceeded to investigate he was met by what appeared to be a man of medium build, whose face wore a strikingly peculiar and ghostly expression. The apparition would make no reply to several inquiries addressed to it, but its expression changed so as to closely resemble that of a former night watchman who died recently. After making further tests which fully convinced Putnam that his companion was not human he decided to seek more congenial company and departed in haste leaving the apparition in full possession.

Whether Mr. Putnam will continue in his present position is not known, but the affair has aroused no little interest among Putnam's friends and acquaintances here, as his veracity is unquestioned.

Thieves Succeeded in Securing $17 in Cash And a Suit of Clothes.

Thieves broke into the house of David Ralston, at Smith's Ferry, yesterday morning and robbed him of $17 in money, a fine suit of clothes and many other valuables which could be easily carried.

Mr. Ralston was attending a funeral at the time. This is the second time Mr. Ralston has been robbed during the past year, the previous robbery having occurred last August, but at that time little of value was stolen.

The thieves left no clue, and although several persons are suspected, nothing definite is known as to their identity, but Mr. Ralston will make a strong effort to bring the parties to justice.

TWO CASES

WERE FILED IN THE COURT OF SQUIRE M'LANE.

Alex Chaffin Has Commenced a Forceable Detention Action Against Some of His Tenants.

Alex Chaffin has begun an action in the court of Justice McLane against Mr. and Mrs. George Gall for forcible detention. The case is being heard this afternoon. The suit involves property situated in East End.

Henry Schenkel has been rooming with Mrs. T. L. Rice on Broadway for several months. Recently he concluded to go to housekeeping with his mother, but when he went for his belongings found them locked up. The landlady claimed Henry owed her some room rent, and he was equally positive that he did not.

He thought his way so hard that he went to Justice McLane with his troubles. Constable Miller accompanied him to the Rice home, but that proved disastrous, as the constable's presence had a bad effect and did no good.

They returned to the squire's office where replevin proceedings were instituted. This had the desired effect and the barber's possessions were brought to McLane's court and turned over to their owner.

It developed that Schenkel had agreed to pay $8 per month for the room, and had paid $2 each week, making a gain of that amount in every case where five Saturdays occurred in a month, so that he was considerably ahead when he quit.

The case is set for Tuesday morning, at which time it will be tried upon its merits.

Justice McLane at 2 o'clock this afternoon united in marriage John Dimmerling and Miss Ada Hamilton, both of East Liverpool.

PLENTY OF ATTORNEYS.

The Legal Lights Were Very Numerous at the Fulton-Allison Trial.

The much-talked-of case of Fulton versus Allison was held Saturday at New Cumberland before Justice Ward, who withheld his decision until today.

A number of witnesses were present, but only two of them were examined by the defense, who claim they considered it unnecessary to proceed further.

The prosecution was conducted by Attorneys Oliver Marshall, of New Cumberland, and Erastus Marshall, of East Liverpool, and the defense was handled by Attorneys Hart & McKenzie, of New Cumberland; Ingram, of Chester, and Davidson, of East Liverpool.

Southside Notes.

Mrs. Ada Marshall and her father, David Yant, of Fairview, were visiting relatives in Chester Saturday.

Miss Minnie Neal has partly recovered from the dangerous injury received at the base of the brain as the result of a fall on the ice, but she is now suffering from a complication of diseases, resulting from internal injuries received at that time, which are likely to prove fatal.

Charles Boles, who came home from Connellsville Saturday, returned to that place this morning.

THREE CARS HERE.

They Are Being Unloaded Today in the Lower Freight Yards.

The three cars ordered by the East Liverpool street railway arrived in the lower yards Saturday and are being unloaded today.

VICTIMS PERISHED.

Hope Gone and Water Turned
Into Burning Mine

THE ENTOMBED NUMBERED 61.

Dunsmuir, One of the Owners, Ordered
the Company Storekeepers to Give the Afflicted Families Whatever They Need
ed—Steps at Vancouver to Secure Aid

Vancouver, B. C., Feb. 18.—Additional details from the Union mines on Vancouver island, where the terrible fatality occurred Friday afternoon, showed that the accident had thrown the towns of Cumberland and Nanaimo into a state of gloom. The Canadian Pacific Railway company's steamer Tartar arrived at Vancouver, from the coaling station at Union, about 12 miles from Cumberland. She brought two passengers, H. R. Raymond and George Bennett, both coal miners. Neither had any theory as to the cause of the explosion in No. 6 shaft, in which the accident occurred. They said the cause was not known and that it will never be known. When the Tartar left Union the late news from No. 6 shaft was that the flooding process was still being continued. The fire was still burning, although not so fiercely as during about the 36 hours preceding. The tremendous volume of water pouring into the mines from the continuous supply furnished by an eight-inch main was gradually performing the desired service, and by today it is confidently expected the fire will be extinguished. It will be several days, Raymond says, before the bodies of the 61 entombed miners can be recovered, because after the fire has been put out it will be necessary to pump the water out of the mine before a rescuing party can hope to get at the corpses now lying at the bottom of the shaft.

Shortly before the Tartar sailed from Union the steamer Joan arrived, having on board Premier James Dunsmuir, of the British Columbia government, who is one of the owners of the Cumberland mines. The families of the dead miners require financial assistance, which will be forthcoming from more than one source. The mayor of Vancouver has already taken steps to aid the bereaved families and other cities are taking similar action. In the meantime Premier Dunsmuir has ordered the storekeepers at Cumberland to give the distressed families what supplies they may need.

After the arrival of Premier Dunsmuir and his party at mine shaft No. 5, which connects with No. 6, it was opened and the big fan started to drive a volume of air down and to force back the gases and afterdamp from No. 6.

Later Manager Little, Inspector of Mines McGregor, Thomas Russell and a number of other mining engineers went down and were below about two hours. They reported on coming up that they had proceeded in some 800 or 900 feet, when they met body gas. Shaft No. 6 is flooded to a depth of 42 feet, and it is believed the fire has been extinguished.

The members of the party who went down No. 5 found no smoke or sign of fire. Some believe that they will be able to get through to No. 6 and endeavor to get out some of the bodies today or tomorrow.

ETHELBERT NEVIN DEAD.

The Famous Musical Composer Died at New Haven, Conn.

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 18.—Ethelbert Nevin, musician and composer died suddenly here of heart disease. He was 38 years old. Mr. Nevin came to New Haven about five weeks ago to be associated with Prof. Parker, of Yale university, in his musical work. He was in perfect health until last Friday. He leaves a widow and two children.

Mr. Nevin until a few years ago made his residence in Edgeworth, near Pittsburgh, and then removed to New York, but a short time ago going to New Haven.

His wife was Miss Annie Paul, of Pittsburgh, Pa. As a composer Nevin attained a name hardly second to any American musician, and his songs are known throughout two continents. Among these are the "Rosary," "Narcissus," "Good Night," "Good Night,

"Beloved," and an arrangement of Heine's "Habbin Rislein."

ILLNESS OF DOWAGER EMPRESS.

Conflicting Reports as to Condition of Kaiser's Mother.

Berlin, Feb. 18.—The reports as to the condition of Dowager Empress Frederick, who is ill at Cronberg, are quite contradictory. The Local Anzeiger prints a dispatch from Homberg asserting that her condition is satisfactory; that Dr. Renvers, a Berlin specialist, who was called to attend her some time ago, has not been to Homberg for about three weeks, and that her private physician attended a ball Saturday evening. A Berlin news agency corroborates the statements that her condition is quite satisfactory.

On the other hand, the British embassy takes a very serious view of the situation, believing that Emperor William is remaining at Cronberg in anticipation of a fatal issue, and refusing to believe the reports that the dowager empress goes out driving daily.

From private sources it is ascertained that the end is expected in a few weeks at the latest.

WORK OF MUNCHAUSENS.

Roosevelt Denies Bear and Wolf Stories, but Asserts His Prowess When Comes to Lions.

Colorado Springs, Colo., Feb. 18.—Governor Roosevelt was in Colorado Springs Sunday, the guest of P. B. Stewart, who was one of the members of the hunting party in Rio Blanco county during the first three weeks of the governor's outing. The vice president-elect was in the most excellent health and spirits. A public reception, it was expected, will be tendered him in this city this afternoon at about 5 o'clock. He expressed the desire that nothing in the nature of a banquet be held and the reception will be simply a public informal handshaking occasion, granted to the people of Colorado Springs by the vice president-elect.

To a reporter he said in part:

"The sensational stories, such as those describing adventures with bears and wolves, were deliberate and wilful fabrications, and, I understand, were written by men who were not within hundreds of miles of where I was. We did not see a bear or wolf on the entire trip. Aside from lynx and smaller game, our hunting was confined to hunting the so-called mountain lions or panthers. I got 12 of them. I am obliged to go east in view of the nearness of the inauguration. I am, to my great regret, unable to address the Colorado legislature, in accordance with their kind request. I cannot sufficiently express my appreciation of the generous courtesy and hospitality with which I have been treated in Colorado, and I shall eagerly hail the first chance to again come to the state."

SMASH, SMASH, SMASH!

Hatchets and Axes Wielded by Liquor's Foes.

MRS. NATION ARRESTED 4 TIMES.

Announced She Would Resume Her Campaign in Topeka Today Again Joint, Livery Barn and Cold Storage Place Visited—Attended a Mass Meeting.

Topeka, Feb. 18.—About 6 o'clock Sunday morning as the big bell on the Church of the Assumption tower was striking the hour, Mrs. Nation sailed forth from the state house grounds at the head of about 500 men and women, all armed with hatchets and axes, and moved on some of the joints of the city.

In the crowd were a large number of students of Washburn college, some of the ministers of the city, and a number of professional and business men. The crowd marched in perfect military order, the men and women following their recognized leader, whom they seemed to trust implicitly. The company marched silently out of the state house grounds, down Kansas avenue, to the place on East Seventh street, kept by Ed Murphy. When Murphy's place was reached, the work of demolition began. Mrs. Nation, brandishing a new hatchet, headed the onslaught, uttering words of depreciation against the joint keepers as she sent her weapon through the first plate glass window at hand. Others followed her lead quickly. Amid the shouts of the crusaders and the dictatorial commands of the policemen present, trying to protect the property, glass was soon crashing to the ground on all sides. Next the door was smashed in with an ax and the beer kegs, bottles, mirrors and everything smashable were attacked. Hardly five minutes after Mrs. Nation had begun smashing what was once a well-furnished saloon was in complete ruins.

Mrs. Nation was arrested and she urged the crowd to continue the work, which they did after some hesitation. She went along with the officer. At the police station she was released promptly and hurried back to her work.

She entered a livery barn, in which some bars had been stored, and smashed them. Then at the head of 25 of her stoutest hearted followers she went to the Moser cold storage plant and entered upon a search for some liquor that she thought had been stored there, but it had been removed. This time Mrs. Nation was arrested by the county authorities and was taken to the jail in a patrol wagon. She was released and started to the center of the city and was arrested again, on a warrant, for the attack on Murphy's place. It was afternoon before she was released from jail on bond, and after taking dinner with Sheriff Cook she went to the First Christian church, where she was accosted by an officer with a warrant and taken to the county jail again. She stayed this time for about two hours, and finally her bond was signed by one of the joint keepers of the city, a prominent negro politician.

Last night Mrs. Nation announced that she would begin this morning where she left off Sunday, and would not rest until all the joints in Topeka have been closed.

BALLOT BEATS HATCHET.

Miss Susan B. Anthony Talked of Mrs. Nation's Crusade—Denounced Men of Kansas.

Rochester, N. Y., Feb. 18.—Miss Susan B. Anthony celebrated her eighty-first birthday Friday, and considering the strain attending that ceremony was looking very well Sunday. When asked for her opinion of Mrs. Carrie Nation and her followers, Miss Anthony, in spite of her advanced years, warmed to her subject with the fire and enthusiasm of former years, and after denouncing the men of Kansas, declaring that neither party has been able to deal with the Prohibition party, said in part:

"The hatchet is the weapon of barbarism; the ballot is the one weapon of civilization."

"In Kansas, since 1887, Mrs. Nation, with all the women in the 286

cities of the state, has had the right to vote for mayor, for the members of the common council, and for every other officer of the municipality. Women equally with men have the responsibility. Therefore, the duty of Mrs. Nation, and all the women of Kansas, is to register and vote for only such men or women who will publicly pledge themselves to do their duty and to carefully retire to private life every officer who has failed to show his hand.

"By this process of weeding out the sympathizers with the saloon, and voting only for men and women true to principle, the women would see the fruit of their labors proving to themselves and to the world the power of the ballot over the hatchet."

AGAINST CHINESE COURT?

Expedition Being Formed, Which Foreign Envoys Believe to Be to Sian Fu.

Pekin, Feb. 18.—A few days ago Count Von Waldersee wrote to the generals under his supervision notifying them to have all their available troops ready in two weeks for an expedition lasting 80 days. General Chaffee and General Voyron, the French commander, received letters asking for their co-operation and expressing a desire to know what forces they can spare. In commencing his letter to General Chaffee, Count Von Waldersee says:

"Owing to the unsatisfactory nature of the negotiations for peace and also to circumstances rendering such a course desirable, it will probably be necessary to resume military operations on a large scale, especially toward the west."

It is not thought likely that General Chaffee will agree to such a plan without instructions from Washington. The French commander, however, is expected to do so. Sir Alfred Gazalee, the British commander, or General Voyron, the French commander, may command it.

Ere long an announcement is expected that the destination of the proposed expedition is Sian Fu. The foreign envoys believe its object to be to compel the Chinese to accept the terms of the powers. It is thought that when it becomes known that the expedition has started the imperial court will hasten to comply immediately with all the demands of the joint note.

The military are much elated at the prospect of active service. Many believe the Chinese army will strive to the uttermost to protect the province of Shen Si against invasion.

THE ASPHALT CONTROVERSY.

Likely to Go to Venezuelan Courts—United States said to so Wish.

Willemstad, Island of Curacao, Feb. 18.—(via Haytien cable)—The asphalt controversy has been temporarily adjusted by the diplomacy of the United States minister to Venezuela, Mr. Francis B. Loomis, and the matter will doubtless go to the courts, as it is reported that the United States government desires a formal adjudication as to the rival interests involved. It is understood that Mr. Loomis has conveyed a request to this effect to the Venezuelan government.

Should the decision be against the New York and Bermudez company, then the question of intervention will be opened afresh.

Trouble is feared at Pitch Lake, should an attempt to eject the New York and Bermudez company be made before a decision has been reached by the courts.

SURPRISED REBEL LEADERS.

Villamor Wounded—Further Developments Against Carman.

Manila, Feb. 18.—Eighty men of the Fifth United States infantry and a detachment of scouts surprised the insurgent leaders, Villamor and Alejandris, near Paperia. Villamor was wounded.

There had been further incriminating developments in the charges against Dr. D. M. Carman, the American contractor, who, with his partner, Theodoric Carranza, a Spanish merchant, was arrested Feb. 6, charged with furnishing supplies to aid the insurgents. Proof has been secured of his dealings with the rebels, showing that he supplied them with uniforms, provisions, money and some arms. The investigation will be continued.

Many insurgent officers were surrendered.

WAS THE GIRL KIDNAPED?

Daughter of an Indiana Man Was Missing, Near Marion.

Marion, Ind., Feb. 18.—Minnie Hultz, 15 years of age, the daughter of James Hultz, one of the wealthiest men in the county, it was believed by her father, was kidnaped at a country church nine miles east of the city, Friday night.

A search has been made for the missing girl and no trace of her had been found at a late hour last night. James Hultz is said to be worth about $100,000. He lives in one of the most beautiful country homes in the county. Hultz states that he does not think that the girl eloped, but that she was kidnaped, and probably for a ransom.

EVILS OF CANTEEN.

Rev. Dr. Dodge Said Liquor Wrecked Many Volunteers.

OVER $450,000 SPENT FOR DRINK.

So Asserted General Secretary Dunn, of the National Temperance Society, at a Meeting in New York—Rev. Dr. Burrell One of the Speakers.

New York, Feb. 18.—A meeting under the auspices of the National Temperance society was held last night in the Broadway tabernacle. Rev. D. Stuart Dodge, D. D., said there were immense numbers of young men who had escaped climatic disease and bullets during the Spanish war and who came back to their homes drunkards and physical wrecks on account of the army canteen.

General Secretary J. B. Dunn, of the National Temperance society, said that the evils laid bare by the Spanish war aroused public sentiment and led to the passage of the bill by congress abolishing the saloon in the various camps.

"During the war," said Secretary Dunn, "many communities had to take up collections to help the wives and families of soldiers who were squandering their pay at the canteen. During that short war over $450,000 was spent for drink at one of the big camps in the south. The government of the United States has no right to be interested in the sale of liquor."

Rev. Dr. Burrell, among other things, said:

"There is a bill before the New York state legislature to allow the sale of liquor on Sunday during the Pan-American exposition at Buffalo, but it will not pass. There is also a bill to re-establish the canteen in the army pending in Washington, and it is not going to pass. The bills prohibiting the sale of liquor to the natives of Hawaii and other Pacific islands ought to pass."

SEVERE COLD IN EUROPE.

Numerous Deaths Were Reported—Small Wrecks Occurred Off the Coast of Spain.

London, Feb. 18.—Some of Europe was experiencing a return of winter weather. Severe cold and snowstorms were reported from England, Germany, Italy, Austria and Russia. The blizzard continued in the Odessa district. In Switzerland many villages were cut off. Numerous deaths were reported.

Paris, Feb. 18.—Very severe weather and heavy snowstorms were reported throughout France. Snow had fallen at intervals in Paris. Snow falls were also reported in Algiers, where several natives had been frozen to death. Telegraphic communication with the interior is partially interrupted.

Madrid, Feb. 18.—Throughout Spain the weather is intensely cold, the thermometer registering eight degrees below zero in Madrid. Snow has fallen in Murcia and in Palma, capital of the island of Majorca, where snowstorms have been practically unknown. A heavy gale is sweeping the southern coast, and eight small wrecks are reported from Cadiz.

RETALIATION OF RUSSIA.

Some Opinions of Discriminating Duty Against American Iron and Steel Manufacturers.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 18.—Shrewd observers in St. Petersburg believe that the Russian minister of finance, M. de Witte, in imposing a discriminating duty on American manufacturers of iron and steel, was not only animated by a desire to protect Russian sugar producers, but was eager to seize an opportunity to mobilize Russia's industrial army, with a view to proving its ability to stand the test of a tariff war. It is believed, moreover, that he desires to impress Germany even more than the United States.

The Russian press does not give any particular approval to the experiment. The Bourse Gazette, usually influenced by the minister of finance, in part, warns both sides against implicit faith in the Bismarckian theory that tariff wars don't disturb good political relations, pointing out that experience has shown the opposite to be the case as a rule.

Americans here have long been convinced that one of the most formidable obstacles to the developments of America's export trade with Russia is the lack of sufficient return cargoes to make a direct steamship line between New York and St. Petersburg profitable. Therefore they deplore any action that would tend to aggravate the difficulty.

NEGRO FIEND LYNCHED.

He Murdered a Man, Then Killed His Wife and Two Children and Ransacked the House.

New Orleans, Feb. 18.—A negro named Tiss Jackson was lynched near St. Peter, a station on the Texas and Pacific railroad, about 20 miles above the city. He visited the home of Alexander Bourgois, the engineer of the draining machinery on Bell Point plantation, some distance from the plantation quarters, going there on a tricycle. He told Bourgois the manager wanted him and the engineer mounted the tricycle with him. A little way further on Jackson stabbed the engineer in the back and then threw the body into ditch. He then returned to the house and butchered Mrs. Bourgois and her two babies and ransacked the house. Two boys were visiting the family and when they caught the first glimpse of the attack on Mrs. Bourgois they hid in the woods.

After the negro's departure they went to St. Peter and gave the alarm and returned with a mob of several hundred. The negro was traced to his home, fully identified by the boys and was hung and his body riddled with bullets before the sheriff arrived.

TRIED TO PROMOTE NUISANCE.

Good Citizens Opposed, So Fleischmann and Hobart Resigned.

Cincinnati, Feb. 18.—Mayor Julius Fleischmann and W. N. Hobart resigned as directors of the Cincinnati May Music Festival association. The mayor was a liberal patron of the biennial musical events here. Hobart had been a director in this association for about a quarter of a century, and connected with it since its organization. He had been president of it for 18 years.

These resignations were due to the opposition of others in the May festival directory to the contest that was scheduled for last Friday night between Jeffries and Ruhlin.

Hobart, who had been noted as a factor in public spirited enterprises, was one of the members of the old Saengerfest board and also a director in the Saengerfest Athletic association. It was claimed that some of their associates in the May festival directory were most severe in their criticisms of the arrangements for the pugilistic affair.

MAYOR VAN WYCK DISAPPROVED.

But the Police Bill Is Likely to Become Law Nevertheless.

New York, Feb. 18.—It was learned Sunday that Mayor Van Wyck on Saturday evening returned to Albany the police bill with his disapproval attached.

The mayor's message, it was expected, would reach Albany today. It is believed the bill will be passed over the veto by both houses of the legislature and that the governor will then sign it.

Actor Mantell Is Dead.

Philadelphia, Feb. 18.—Robert B. Mantell, the actor, was required to furnish bail in $600 for his appearance in court on a writ of habeas corpus instituted by Miss Emma Behrens, his sister-in-law. Miss Behrens has been endeavoring to secure possession of Ethel Robinson, the 5-year-old child of Mantell's former wife, the late Charlotte Behrens. Miss Behrens claimed that her sister, prior to her marriage to Mantell, appointed her guardian of the child.

SOME EVENTS IN BRIEF.

Joseph McIntyre, of near Wurtemburg, Pa., fell down a flight of stairs, breaking his neck, and died almost instantly.

At New Castle, Pa., James J. Morrissey, a brakeman, lost his life by being cut in two under the wheels of a freight car from which he slipped and fell.

DIVORCE LAWS CRIMINAL.

Representative Tayler Pointed Out Necessity For an Amendment to the Constitution.

Washington, Feb. 18.—There is no legal obstacle to a man's having a lawful wife in nearly every state in the Union and living with each one a week at a time in turn. That is the way Representative Tayler, of Ohio, sums up the powers on the subject of marriage and divorce possessed by the proud American sovereign. Mr. Taylor wishes the constitution to be amended that congress will have authority to make laws on the subject of marriage and divorce that shall produce uniformity.

Mr. Taylor some time ago offered a resolution submitting an amendment to the constitution to the legislatures of the states.

THREE PREACHERS RESIGN.

Increased Number of Vacant Presbyterian Pulpits, In Cleveland, to Seven.

Cleveland, Feb. 18.—Rev. Hiram C. Haydn and Rev. W. H. Hurlburt, pastor and associate pastor of the old Stone (Presbyterian) church, resigned their offices Sunday. Dr. Haydn wishes to retire from the active ministry. Dr. Hurlburt's resignation was sent in so that the session may be free to appoint Dr. Haydn's successor.

Rev. E. E. Baker, pastor of the Woodland Avenue Presbyterian church, resigned Sunday, to accept a call to the First Presbyterian church in Oakland, Cal.

These changes in the local presbytery leaves seven large churches of that denomination without pastors in Cleveland.

JOHN T. MCCUTCHEON ILL.

Artist and Newspaper Man to Be Taken Asheville, N. C.

Chicago, Feb. 18.—John T. McCutcheon, the well-known Chicago artist and newspaper man, who spent about two years in the Philippines and who for several weeks had been seriously ill with pneumonia, will be taken to Asheville, N. C., in a short time.

Unfortunate symptoms developed during last week, and his friends became alarmed at his condition. As a consequence arrangements were made for a private car, which will be placed at the disposal of Mr. McCutcheon. Trained nurses will accompany him, as will also George Ade, his close friend and co-laborer. The doctors who attended Mr. McCutcheon declared that the tropical fever had so infested his entire system that nothing but a change of climate would save his life.

CHASE OF DE WET.

Kitchener and Staff Reached De Aar to Superintend It.

London, Feb. 18.—A dispatch to The Daily Telegraph from De Aar, dated Feb. 16, confirmed the report of the arrival there of Lord Kitchener and his staff to superintend the chase of General De Wet. The correspondent says:

De Wet's force is now denuded of almost all transport vehicles, and his horses are exhausted.

Other South American dispatches report that several columns are pursuing General De Wet, whose exact whereabouts, however, is not indicated.

A Dreadful Moment.

A conductor on the Park line had an experience the other day that is quite certain to cause him many uncomfortable minutes in the future. His car stopped at Spruce street to let a middle aged lady on, and as she took her seat the conductor gave the motorman two bells, and the car shot ahead. When the conductor entered the car, the woman in question was looking out of the window and did not see his outstretched hand.

"Fare, please," remarked the conductor.

The woman evidently did not hear him, for she did not turn her head. Neither did she hold out the necessary coin.

"Fare, please," said the conductor in a louder tone.

But the woman paid no heed. Then the conductor touched her on the shoulder and in a tone of voice that rang through the car exclaimed:

"Your fare, please, lady!"

Then the woman turned hastily around and looked at the conductor. The knight of the bellicose gave one gasp and fled to the back platform.

The woman was his mother-in-law.

A LONDON CRIMINAL.

THE FOG THIEF AND HOW HE PLIES HIS PECULIAR TRADE.

He Operates Boldly Both In the City and on the Thames—Carries Off His Plunder From Vans and Cabs Shrouded In the Dense Gloom.

Thousands of thieves long for fog with a great longing. Incredible as it may seem, property worth tens of thousands of pounds is every year stolen from vans and lorries alone in London streets. Quite nine-tenths of this property disappears during fogs.

The leaders of the fog thief gangs usually have some little capital to start with. One of them affects to be a cartage contractor on a small scale. He takes very quiet premises that have a high boarding round and that are not overlooked. If he has plenty of cellarage, all the better. He has at least one smart trap and horse and two and sometimes three rogues to go with it.

It is during the late foggy afternoons and early evenings of winter that the hauls are made. Streets with warehouses—and not shops that are lighted brilliantly and early—on each side and that are often congested with traffic are mostly chosen. The small and smart though dingy and inconspicuous looking trap plunges into the thick of the traffic. It soon, in the gloom and murk, places itself immediately behind a van or lorry piled with packages of various kinds.

The men in the quick trap are all on the alert. One of them, a man chosen for his immense physical strength, goes to the head of the pony on some pretext. He soon has a package down from the van in front. He is provided with sharp cutting instruments, and he has a powerful piece of strap with a hook at one end. If there is a boy sitting behind the van, the men in the trap contrive to get him down by diverting his attention. Even with a view to distracting the possible attention of carters, the thieves generally get up an altercation, or "barney," among themselves or with others. They are men of colossal impudence and powers of abuse, and all attention becomes riveted upon them. In one case not far from Farringdon street last December they carried off one parcel of furs worth £700, the van boy being temporarily blinded, as alleged, by a lad with the thieves blowing some snuff into his face from a pea shooter and then disappearing.

One of the most notorious of these fog thieves was a lithe young fellow who crept along the back of a pony to its head. American jockey fashion, and hooked what he could from out of the van in front.

The great hauls of these men are when they follow cabs and private carriages from a railway station. In such cases they generally use two traps and horses. A cab is marked that has apparently valuable luggage on the top. This is followed till some dark street is reached where the way is narrow or congested; then the driver of one of the traps, that has a very swift pony harnessed to it, deliberately drives across the head of the cab or carriage horse.

Of course there is an angry altercation, and while this is going on the thieves on the other trap have got into the immediate rear of the luggage laden vehicle. One of the thieves goes along his horse's back and lifts the luggage down.

One of the hauls effected last winter in this way was worth £8,000 and was the property of Mr. de Silva, an Argentina millionaire. The robbery took place not far from St. Pancras' church just before the shops were lighted up.

As the summer sun brings forth myriads of living creatures, so does a Thames fog bring out upon the dark and apparently deserted river a vast horde of thieves. At least a dozen of the wharf and lighter owners complain of losing from their respective wharves as much as from one to six hundred pounds' worth of coal alone every year.

The reader can learn at any riverside house frequented by tugboat men that there are scores, literally scores, of tugs on the river that have never bought a pennyworth of coal for great numbers of years. The Thames police would tell that same reader that men have retired on competences who have been reported to have made their whole fortune out of coal stolen with impunity on the river.

The police are helpless over the vast expanse of river and in the labyrinthine backwaters. If they raid one of the pirate boats in the gloom and darkness, the spoil is turned out to the bottom of the river in a trice. If this sort of thing can be done to such an extent with a commodity like coal, it may be imagined what befalls other valuable property on wharves or in lighters.

The fraudulent picker up of the river blesses the fog. The picker up is a man who notices that certain barges with valuable cargoes are moored in such a way that, if they broke loose, they would entail vast expense. The picker up sees that these barges do break loose. That part of his work he does in dead secret. And then, making plenty of noise about it at this stage, he rescues from danger the very barges that he has set adrift and sends in a heavy salvage claim.—London Answers.

The Stars and Stripes at Acre.

A good American had been making some soul stirring remarks about the glorious star spangled banner when an Englishman who is pretty well Americanized told a little story apropos: "I remember once to have seen the stars and stripes applauded uproariously on a peculiar occasion. It happened many years ago when the British flag wasn't as popular in the United States as it is now and a party of us Englishmen were at a theater in New York considerably farther down town than theaters are now to be found on Broadway. The play was 'Richard I,' and if you remember there is a scene in the play where Richard, after putting his foes to flight in terrific style, mounts the walls of Acre and plants the British colors there. Evidently the management knew the temper of the audience and felt that even under such circumstances the British flag would not be a good thing, so what did they do but give Richard the star spangled banner, and, by all the gods, he took it with him in the charge and planted it on Acre's walls. It was ridiculous, of course, and we Englishmen laughed, but the audience took it quite as the correct thing, and the way the people stormed and shouted and clapped was enough to have made Richard turn over in his grave. Historically it was away off, dramatically it was open to criticism, but patriotically it was a howling success!"—Washington Star.

Trigonometry In X Ray Work.

"Few people know," said Dr. J. C. Egelston while performing an operation at the City hospital, "that it takes trigonometry to locate a bullet in the body. But in every X ray operation in which the bullet or foreign substance is deeply imbedded a mathematical computation is necessary to show just how deep the bullet is. The X rays make the flesh transparent, leaving only the bones and foreign substance visible, so that you see just where the bullet is, and yet you don't know where it is. You know its latitude and longitude, so to speak, but those measurements are surface measurements, and you don't know how deep the object is beneath the surface. The point on the surface of the body beneath which the bullet is can be readily located, but how far beneath that point is the bullet?

"This is the question that trigonometry has to answer, and by knowing the answer a great deal of unnecessary cutting may be saved, and what might otherwise be a difficult and dangerous operation may be rendered comparatively safe and easy. If the bullet enters one side of the body, for instance, and lodges within an inch or two of the skin on the other side, the other side of the body would be the one from which to operate."—Kansas City Journal.

Of course there is an angry altercation, and while this is going on the thieves on the other trap have got into the immediate rear of the luggage laden vehicle. One of the thieves goes along his horse's back and lifts the luggage down.

One of the hauls effected last winter in this way was worth £8,000 and was the property of Mr. de Silva, an Argentina millionaire. The robbery took place not far from St. Pancras' church just before the shops were lighted up.

"No."
"I reckoned not. I don't believe I'd go down the trail that runs past Abe Gore's shack if I wab you. Abe had his boss stole last week."

"But this isn't his horse."
